ENGINE FEATURES

12. An engine that operates at the proper temperature naturally has a longer life. Because of the new full length water jackets, the oil temperature is 14% lower than in the 1935 engine—resulting in a cooler, quieter operating engine and increased durability.

Enter the New WAISTCOAT JUMPER

In Lemon &
Emerald
by
MARY GRACE

THERE'S a real holiday spirit about this new waistcoat jumper.

Why not knit it up for your fortnight away, in some pretty colour—white, lemon or sky, with a vivid contrasting scarf and buttons, for a cruise or the seaside; in brighter gay tones for holidays at home.

It's a quick-knitter, and looks very slim, believe me. The materials for making it are as follows:

Materials: 11 oz. of "Anisby" Speedwool, 1 pr. of No. 5 pins, 1 pr. No. 7 pins, 8 buttons.

Measurements: Length from shoulder to point, 21 1/2 ins.; width across back underarm, 16 1/2 ins.; width across each front, 9 ins.; sleeve length from shoulder, 8 ins.; tension 9 sts. and 12 rows to 4 ins.

The Back
Cast on 64 sts. K. into back 1st row, then work 3 rows Garter st. Then change to pattern.

Rows 1 to 4: *K4, P4, repeat from * to end of row.
Rows 5 to 8: *P4, K4, repeat from * to end of row.

These 8 rows form pattern. Work until 3 ins. from start. Then change to No. 7 pins and work 2 ins. Change to No. 5 pins, work 8 ins. (Work should now measure 13 ins. from the start.)

Shape Armholes: K2 tog. at each end of every row until 40 sts. remain (a dec. of 8 sts. each side). Work on these 40 sts. for 6 ins.

Shape Shoulders: Work 16 sts. cast off 10, work 16. Work on each side of 16 sts. for one inch. Knitting 2 sts. tog. at neck edge every row until 12 sts. remain.

Shape Neck: Cast off 6 sts. at beg. of the 2 armhole end rows.

Right Front
With No. 5 pins cast on 31 sts. K. into backs, 1st row. 2nd row: K. 3rd row: K. twice into 1st st. K. to end 4th row: K. to last st. K. twice into last st. 43 sts.

5th row: K. twice into 1st st. K4. Turn P4, K2.
7th row: K. twice into 1st st. P1. K4, P4, Turn, K4, P4, K2.
9th row: K. twice into 1st st. K2. P4, K4, P4, Turn (K4, P4 twice).
11th row: K. twice into 1st st. K3.

Lip Service
LIPSTICK is made to enhance, not detract, its user. But if Nature has endowed you with thin lips, practice increasing them slightly.

Take the rouge right out to the edges and, if you are satisfied with this kind of thing, smooth it out a little beyond the normal line.

It's difficult to do this convincingly, but a beautiful mouth makes a beautiful face, so it is worth a little practice.

(P4, K4 twice). Turn (P4, K4 twice). P4, K1.
15th row: K. twice into 1st st. (P4, K4 3 times). Turn. (P4, K4 3 times) K2.

15th row: K. twice into 1st st. K1. (P4, K4 3 times). P4. Turn. (K4, P4 3 times). K2.

Continue in pat. now, keeping 4 sts. at shaped edge in Garter st. until straight edge of work measures one inch. Then make a buttonhole in the Garter st. border. K2, cast off 2. Work to end of row. On returning row work to where sts. were cast off in previous row, cast on 2, K2.

Continue now in pat., making another buttonhole on every 14th and 15th row following.

When straight edge of work measures 3 in. Change to No. 7 pins and work 2 in. Change to No. 5 pins, work 8 in. (12 in. from start).

Shape Armholes: K2 tog. at beg. of every armhole end row until 32 sts. remain. Work on these 32 sts. until armhole measures 4 in.

Shape Neck: Cast off 10 sts. at neck edge. Continue on remaining 22 sts. knitting 2 sts. tog. every row at neck edge until 12 sts. remain.

Shape Shoulder: Cast off 6 sts. at beg. of 2 armhole end rows.

With No. 5 pins cast on 48 sts. K4 row Garter st. Then continue in pat. knitting twice into 1st and last st. of every 8th row until 52 sts. on pin. When sleeve measures 5 in. cast off 2 sts. at beg. of every row until 12 sts. remain. Cast off.

Sew up shoulder seams and work neck as follows:—With No. 7 pins pick up and knit 49 sts. round neck. Rib 7 rows K1, P1 (making a buttonhole on the 4th row). Cast off in rib.

Pick up and K. 48 sts. from sleeve cast. Rib 6 rows. Cast off.

TO MAKE UP: Press with warm iron and damp cloth on wrong side of work. Sew up all seams. Sew in sleeves. Work buttonholes.

Save-Time Savouries

WHEN you come home to-night the family won't want to wait long for something to eat.

These nourishing savouries are quickly made.

Shrimp and Tomato Pie

Tempting and nourishing is shrimp and tomato pie.

Put the pulp of four tomatoes into a greased pie dish, stir in a cupful of fine breadcrumbs, 1 pint picked shrimp, a teaspoonful of chopped parsley, and, lastly, the yolk of an egg.

Sprinkle with breadcrumbs, cover with a layer of mashed potatoes, dot with margarine and cook in a moderate oven for fifteen minutes.

Bacon Pudding

You can use up scraps of cold boiled or fried bacon this way.

Cut the bacon into small pieces, and arrange in a buttered pie dish. Sprinkle with grated cheese, a small chopped onion, add a beaten egg and half a pint of milk, salt and pepper. Bake in a slow oven for 1 hour. Serve with mashed potatoes.

Scalloped Onions and Cheese

Cheese and onions combine to make this tasty dish.

Ingredients: 1 1/2 lbs. onions, 4 oz. cheese.

by Mrs.
BARDELL

1 pint cheese sauce (white sauce with 2 oz. grated cheese stirred in), pepper and salt, and a cupful of minced boiled bacon, 4 tomatoes.

Cook the onions in boiling salted water until tender, then drain, and arrange half of them in a greased pie dish. Add seasonings, the minced tomatoes, and the bacon.

Four over the cheese sauce. Add the rest of the onion, sprinkle with browned crumbs and grated cheese, dot with butter, then bake in a hot oven until browned.

Fish Cream

A savoury way of using up cold cooked fish.

Flake the skinned and boned fish, then make a white sauce. When it begins to thicken, add the fish and stir for a minute or two. A piece of butter well whisked into the cream is a great improvement. Pour over rounds of buttered toast.

Cold cooked spinach and potatoes make these tasty hot "nests."

Mash equal quantities of the vegetables together, add seasoning, a chopped hard-boiled egg, a teaspoonful of parsley.

Bind together with a beaten egg, brush over with a little of the egg, and sprinkle with crumbs. Fry golden brown in hot fat; serve with meat.

Curt Cures

Keep these simple remedies by you

For indigestion:
Pineapple juice is an excellent digestive.

For a sore throat:
Sage-leaf tea, sweetened with honey, is a good gargle.

For your liver:
Take tomato-juice. It has a specific effect.

For highly strung nerves:
Add two or three handfuls of sweet scented lime blossoms to your bath.

For tired feet:
Add a few drops of arnica to some water and bathe your feet in it.

SIMPLE SWEET

Bananas Glacée is a quickly made sweet. Dip a few sliced bananas in a thick syrup made with 1 lb. of lump sugar and a few tablespoonfuls of water, then roll in icing sugar and let stand till cold.

Monday is the day for "left-overs"—a good omelette can be made with thin strips of ham, mixed beforehand with the eggs. Cucumbers, Salad, mixed with oil, vinegar, and one teaspoonful of caraway seed, can accompany the remains of the cold lamb or ham.

New potatoes, sliced carrots, beans and peas, boiled, mixed and served cold with a mayonnaise dressing make an excellent Vegetable Macédoine, and Sardines au Parmesan—sardines coated with grated Parmesan cheese, seasoned with cayenne and slightly fried in butter, are very tasty as a savoury.

QUIET CORNER

One shell plays many parts . . .

THE empty coconut shell is not an ornament.

With a gaping mouth, where a quarter of it has been sawn away, this fragment of a trophy from some forgotten fair has been fixed for years to the same branch of a plum tree.

Every year the rusty wires which hold it have to be carefully untwisted and refixed to stop them from cutting a deep ring in the thickening wood.

When it has ceased to be a food-bowl for the birds each winter, the shell becomes a house which stands open for its summer tenants. They have returned once more.

In and out of its mouth they go, with pale grey bodies flickering in their quick twisting flight.

At the bottom of the shell there is already a shallow saucer of green moss, the beginning of a nest which shows that the flycatchers will soon be in residence.

OUR BRITISH CROSSWORDS

ACROSS

- Put out—like Rupert when faced with bed.
- Eaten securely in case it breaks away from the back.
- Showing how a mute bard may give a faint indication.
- It is not unusual. I assume, to have stage performances in Garman villages, and here the tempo is excellent (hidden).
- Like all precious stones, it takes an age to make.
- Confound! Not more more.
- The viper has twisted—to spring, perhaps.
- One who takes his hook with pleasure.
- Like a circular movement and passed away eventually.
- Hidden in Clue 10.
- The goldfinch that keeps an eye on Tommy.
- Attacks.
- Three consecutive letters of the alphabet.
- A rush—such as is caused by the breaking-up of ice on a river.
- One kind of platform.
- This is a rudimentary seed. Add M and stir well to make a lot.
- Essential.
- Have a try: two letters would do.
- Express systematically, but shape first and don't finish early.

DOWN

- An aspect taking shape.
- One way—it could be the outer.
- It is pleasant not to take this shade.
- Provides with means: none too digestible, I should say.

LEARN TO SWIM WELL

Are You Collecting this Interesting Series?

KEEP on with the breathing practice described in the first article. But start some push-and-glide work as well. This is very interesting and useful.

Stand at the side of the pool, about waist-deep, with your back to the wall, and your foot up against it too, behind you. Bend forward so that your shoulders are under water, and stretch your arms out to the front as if you were a diver. Then duck your head and push off from the side as hard as you can.

If you can spring the other foot against the wall also, so as to get a stronger push, all the better. Anyhow, you will straighten the body as you push so that you glide flat along the surface, or just under it, with arms, body and legs all in a straight line. With a good push and a straight position you should travel several yards in a lovely smooth glide.

Practise this glide many times, for it will make starting to swim much easier.

THE FIRST STROKES

One other thing. If you can get an old motor inner tube, or some sort of belt or float, you can begin right away to try swimming movements. If you cannot then you must grip the bath side with your hands while practising the legs; and stand up, with shoulders leaned forward into the water, for arm practice.

Don't-paddle will be your first stroke—it is by far the easiest way of swimming.

Lie flat on your breast, holding your float or the bath side, and work the legs slowly. Draw each under you in turn, then drive it back so that the sole pushes against the water. For the arms, stand firmly, then push each arm in turn to full stretch at the front, just under the water. Next the arm drives down, hard and straight until it is under the body. As one arm drives downward and backward the other doubles up under the chin and glides to the front ready for a new stroke. Keep the fingers together and the hand flat so that it gets plenty of power.

More swimming hints soon.

THE MAN BEHIND THE ARAB RIOTS

He Started a Revolution—Now He Cannot Stop It

Rebel Britain Once Pardoned

FLARE-UP THAT HAS NOW COST £100,000

By LADISLAS FARAGO

Jerusalem, July 1.

THE Holy City to-day is a dead city. The streets are empty; the Arab shops are closed.

Reinforced police patrols stand at street corners and in the doorways of the Old City, searching the infrequent passers-by for weapons.

The Arab revolt against Jewish immigration has cast a blanket of fear over the city, bringing all normal activity to a standstill.

Near the pavements stand solitary cars. Nails strewn upon the roadway make it impossible for motorists to continue their journeys.

In the uncanny silence one hears from time to time the explosion of bombs.

Occasional shots split the air with a whiplike crack. Only in the Jewish quarter does life still pulsate, but the atmosphere is oppressed.

Faces reveal sorrow and trouble. Troubled still more by to-day's disturbances at Haifa when police and troops had to open fire to quell a disturbance caused by the arrest of Moslem women.

Snipers were busy, a bomb was thrown at the police station, and the demonstrator was shot dead.

Arabs: erected barricades and stoned a British policeman, but luckily a lorry patrol of the Loyal Regiment (North Lancashire) came to his assistance.

They opened fire, checking the situation until the arrival of reinforcements.

Born Rebel

In a modern equipped office near the Walling Wall, between mosques and churches, I found the man behind the Arab revolts—Haji Elni El-Husseini, the Grand Mufti of Jerusalem and president of the Supreme Arab Council.

He is the born Arab rebel. Haji Elni is only 42, but behind him lies a life full of excitement and emotionalism.

When only 20 he led revolts. That was in 1920. At that time he was condemned to a long term of imprisonment but escaped into the interior.

Two years later he was pardoned and nominated Grand Mufti and President of the Supreme Arab Council.

Fanatical Devotion

His influence on the Arab masses is tremendous, but this influence is tragically one-sided.

"If he should openly declare Holy War," one of his candidates told me.

New Cure For Hay Fever

London, June 26.

A certain cure for Hay Fever is announced.

The authorities in the physiotherapy department at St. Georges Hospital, Hyde Park Corner, after experimenting for five years say they have found the treatment to cure it.

It involves the application, by electricity, of a coating of ionized zinc to the inside of the nostrils.

Three or four applications are given, after which the majority of patients are free from attacks of ordinary hay fever for a year.

Precautionary applications are given at the end of twelve months and again a year later, and after that there is usually no recurrence of the trouble.

Reads by Light of His Own Body

Budapest, June 21.

An "electric man," who can read by the light of his own body, has astounded the doctors of Hungary.

He is the 63-year-old Count John Berenyi. According to physiologists and electrical experts who have examined him, his body—especially in the early morning—is charged with static electricity strong enough to make neon tubes glow when he touches the terminals.

"PASSIONATE JACK"

Strange Letters In Blackmail Case: Mrs. "A" in Court

"Without embellishing anything at all, your worships will appreciate that in all your experience you have never heard the like of this case before."

These were the words used by Mr. Ernest E. Brown, prosecuting in a case at Rushall (Staffs) last month in which William Hugo Jones, aged 36, colliery worker of Lichfield-road, Little Blunham, Walsall, appeared on remand, charged with uttering a letter demanding money by menaces.

Mr. Brown intimated that there were two charges of demanding money by menaces and a third of sending a postal packet containing an indecent and obscene article.

Jones, said Mr. Brown, was a married man with a boy aged ten. He was employed at a local colliery as a weigh clerk.

With reference to the first charge, Mr. Brown said, "The story concerns a lady of substance as well as of social standing in one of the important counties of this country, and I shall ask for the name and address to be suppressed, as well as that of her husband, because he occupies such a position in the county that the publicity would do him serious injury and harm."

MRS. "A" AND MRS. "B"

Mr. Brown said that two women would be called during the hearing of the case whose names it was desired to suppress, and it was agreed that they should be referred to as Mrs. "A" and Mrs. "B."

"In the early part of this year," Mr. Brown continued, "there was a society action in which Mr. Norman Birkett was briefed for the defence and Mrs. 'A' was the defendant. The parties stood in a blood relationship to each other, and the Press—particularly the Sunday Press—gave such publicity to the case that eventually it found its way into the home and knowledge of Jones."

"On February 8 he wrote a letter to Mrs. 'A' which opened the door to a correspondence which indicates either an obsession of a sexual character in the mind of the accused or that he is seeking for a larger field upon such matters."

Mr. Brown read a letter which, he alleged, was written by Jones to Mrs. "A." It stated that he had refrained from writing to her for some time to allow her to recover from the effects of the case.

"KINDRED SPIRIT"

The letter suggested that the writer was a "kindred spirit" and other extracts read, "Although I am a total stranger to you, I am greatly endeared to you and stirred to such an extent that whatever it will cost me in hard cash, I intend to get a little fun and adventure out of you."

The letter said that the writer was 27, was possessed of considerable wealth, though coming from middle-class parentage and that he liked to have contact with women of higher social standing than himself and matrons.

"How far are you prepared to go? I shall not quibble over a few hundreds. I shall leave that to you," the letter said.

It was suggested in the letter that if Mrs. "A" were interested she should insert a message in the personal column of a daily newspaper.

PERSONAL ADVERTISEMENT

Mr. Brown said that after the ordeal resulting from the case in which she was concerned, Mrs. "A" was impatient for eight weeks in a nursing home. She received the first letter from Jones after she had been out of the home for a week. She was considerably disturbed and upset.

She responded to the invitation and inserted a personal advertisement as requested.

"This starts a series of letters, the like of which I have never seen in all my 30 years' professional career," declared Mr. Brown.

"BLISSFUL HAPPINESS"

Mr. Brown read letters written by Mrs. "A" to Jones, who had described himself as "Jack Grayson." Extracts from the first ran: "We can only find blissful happiness together if it is terribly secret. No one must ever see us meeting together. I have burned your letters, and will you promise faithfully to do the same to mine?"

"Letters can be divine, but terribly dangerous, and wreck people's lives."

"This is such an appealing romance, and so intriguing. We are both so passionate it may be marvellous."

"I have come to the conclusion you don't know so much as I do, but, like me, you are suffering from repression. I am tingling all over when I think of you. Now, desperate secrecy."

Mrs. "A" referred to herself in this letter as "your future partner in ? ? ? passion."

"PASSIONATE JACK"

The second letter opened, "Darling, darling, passionate Jack."

Extracts read, "I am just made for lots of love and don't get any. Isn't it terrible? I am the type who always looks 28 and never ages at all."

The letter said that she was, in a way, of grand birth, but loved simple things. She knew an old empty house where they could go and "love and love." The letter contained the phrase, "My passionate boy friend."

In a third letter Mrs. "A" said that she trusted "Passionate Jack," and did not believe him to be a blackmailer or a bungler.

Another extract referred to "Heaven together without any risks. There is no risk of divorce or getting married."

HOME WITHOUT SPEAKING

The letters written by Jones to Mrs. "A" had been destroyed, but in these, said Mr. Brown, he had indicated that his parents were poor, but had carved out for him a career in Parliament. He felt that his correspondence with Mrs. "A" would help him in securing a proper outlook on life and life's possibilities.

On March 14, added Mr. Brown, Mrs. "A" went to Birmingham by arrangement, and at the post office saw a man who was wearing a certain sign that had been agreed.

"When she saw this man she was so shocked and distressed at the difference from what she expected him to be that she drove round Birmingham and went home without speaking to him," said Mr. Brown.

"Here, the story parts ways. The man, apparently disappointed that the woman did not stop, and speak to him, changed his tune."

"GOING OUT TO KENYA"

He wrote to her suggesting that she should bear half of £10 expenses he had incurred in sustaining the correspondence, and in consequence of correspondence from him she sent him three guineas of £2 10s.

Jones had revealed to her for the first time then that he had not destroyed her letters, as she had asked, and she would have done almost anything to get back her letters.

After she had sent the £7 10s, she received a letter in which "Jack Grayson" said that he was going out to Kenya and asked her if she could let him have £20 for expenses.

On May 1 the police, who had by now been informed, knew that a letter for "Jack Grayson" was being sent from Mrs. "A" and Detective Lockley kept watch at Pelsall post-office, to which it was addressed. He saw Jones call and ask for a letter in the name of "Jack Grayson," and subsequently spoke to him.

Jones said, "I admit it was me who sent the letters to Mrs. 'A' at — and I am very sorry."

Later in his desk at the colliery where he worked the letters from Mrs. "A" were found.

MRS. "A" GIVES EVIDENCE

Mrs. "A" was then called. Mrs. "A" said that when she received a snapshot of himself from Jones "it seemed a very nice face." She examined it through a magnifying glass.

Mrs. "A" said that she had been very foolish, adding, "I must have been nearly out of my mind at the time."

After she had sent the £7 10s, Jones wrote of going to Kenya, and asked for £20 for a few necessities.

In another letter he said that unless he received a further £2 10s, making £10 in all, to which he said he had a right, he would postpone sailing for a month. If the money were sent, however, she would get her letters back.

DELIGHTFUL LETTERS

Replying to Mr. A. Victor Haden, defending, who asked why she corresponded with Jones, Mrs. "A" said, "I wondered about the mental outlook such a man had—nothing else." She added that she was not desirous of corresponding, but "I thought he was the type of man who might be helped by me, a middle-aged woman. I admit it was foolish, but it was absolutely kindly intended."

Later "Mrs. A" said: "I simply thought, 'Here is a poor creature who is going mad; perhaps I can help him.'"

She added, "I have never read such delightful letters as some of them were. He was a very very interesting and intelligent letter-writer."

"I came to my senses when I saw him in Birmingham, and I simply fled—never spoke to him."

The Coronation

Who Shall Carry The King's Spurs?

The Court of Claims which has been set up in connection with the Coronation will consider pedigrees dating back to the days of William the Conqueror, which will be put forward by claimants for services at the ceremony.

Men, and women too, who consider they have the hereditary right to perform certain functions at the crowning of the Sovereign will engage counsel to defend their claims before the court.

Many and varied are the claims that are put forward at every British Coronation, and by no means all of them have been allowed in times past. Chief of the "services" to the King is the "service" to the King of King's champion—the knight who, in medieval days, rode into the Coronation banquet hall, proclaiming himself King's Champion, ready to defend the King's claim to the throne against all comers.

There is little dispute as to whom this right belongs, though no armoured knight will challenge traitors next May. From ancient days the King's Champion has been the holder of the Manor of Serjeants, though how the first holder became champion is one of the mysteries of history.

PREVIOUS CLAIMS

Other claims which have come before the Court are— To support the King to the altar; To carry the great spurs (part of the Coronation regalia); To carry the second sword; To supply a baton to the King; To carry the cap of maintenance;

To drink the King's wine as a guard against poisoning; To have the bed which the King sleeps on the night before he is crowned;

To be master of the silver scullery; To be given a box in Westminster Abbey for 73 persons, and 40 cills of crimson velvet (the traditional right of the Lord Great Chamberlain.)

Three claims which are likely to be allowed are those of the Earl of Shrewsbury, as Lord High Steward of Ireland, to carry a white wand as symbol of his office; of the Barons of the Cinque Ports, to hold a canopy over the King's head at the Abbey; and of the Lord of the Manor of Worktop to present to the King a pair of fine gloves.

These claims have been made and allowed at previous coronations, but these, like all other claimants, who, as even the Duke of Norfolk, who, as Earl Marshal, is in control of the whole elaborate ceremonial, must first prove their claims to the satisfaction of the Court of Claims.

Even the right to crown the King, usually ascribed to the Archbishop of Canterbury as Chief Priest of the Church of England, is according to some authorities, a matter for discussion, as there are arguments that could uphold a claim by the Archbishop of York, to whom falls the duty, according to the generally accepted ritual, of crowning the Queen Consort.

All the "rules" for the crowning of Kings are contained in the "Liber Regius," dating from the time of King Richard II, and now in the custody of the Dean of Westminster. Officials of the Privy Council have already consulted the historic book a score of times, and it will be constantly in use while the Court of Claims is in session.

NEW YORK STOCK
EXCHANGEMARKET UPWARD YESTERDAY

New York, July 8.
Swan, Culbertson & Fritz Dow
Jones summary of yesterday's market:—The market to-day was upward, with trading on the light side.
The advance was led by steel shares in which short interests covered their positions. Motor stocks joined the rally, whilst utility securities staged a late demonstration. Railroad stocks advanced under the leadership of the Van Sweringen group. Copper, oil,
Van Sweringen group, Copper, oil, chemical and tobacco issues were higher. Farm and mail-order shares stepped. Business news continues favourable, especially in connexion with the steel and motor industries.
The market for bonds was higher.
Stocks on the Curb Exchange were irregularly higher.

S. C. & P. New York office cables:
Stocks. Securities to-day were in better demand of improved drought news. Utility stocks were the features of the rally. The bonds listed on the board of the Stocks Exchange were valued at $44,163,000,000 on June 30th. Sears Roebuck's sales for the 26 weeks up to June 18 were 20 per cent. above those of the corresponding period of last year.

Cotton: The Government Bureau's recent report to-day estimated the total area sown at 30,621,000 acres, which is lower than had been expected and is construed to indicate a crop of 11,500,000 bales or less. This report, together with the fact that the market is now free of Government interference attracted some broad and general buying. It is reported that stocks and grain traders are now entering the cotton market.

Wheat: Private estimates indicate a Canadian crop of 200,000,000 bushels as of July 3rd. Good rains have fallen in Saskatchewan since that date and there were some heavy showers to-day. Easier mill markets and fears of imports of wheat causing some heavy profit-taking. A forecast of the weather indicates scattered showers and cooler conditions in the North-West.

Corn: The Government reports up-to the present that there is no serious damage to the crop, but it is nearing the critical stage. Prices are now near the Argentine product, with import duty paid.

Rubber: Apprehension that the regulation of the production of rubber would prevent excessive prices is possibly deterring the carry-through of advances. It is estimated that consumption during June totalled 50,000 tons. The Dutch export tax has been increased by one guilder.

CINEMA
NOTES

Audiences at the King's Theatre will be enthralled by Janet Gaynor and Robert Taylor in the excitingly dramatic "Small Town Girl." Janet is the Gaynor the audience has always loved and yet she adds a new flavour to her characterization as the barefooted little girl who married a brilliant and handsome young doctor to get away from the boredom of her sleepy little town. She yet she shows a world of smart style and sophistication in the intersequences which take place in Boston, among "high society." All in all, it is one of the deepest dramatic roles that she has portrayed during her successful career on the screen.
Taylor, as her leading man, portraying the doctor-husband, married to her while intoxicated, shows that he is more than ever the fastest-rising star on the screen to-day. Supporting the stars is a finished cast including the lovely English actress, Dorothy Duns, in the role of Taylor's flamboyant, Lewis Stone as the artist-father, Frank Craven and James Stewart who recently scored as Jean Harlow's patient admirer in "Wife Versus Secretary." Also standing out in the large cast are Douglas Fowley, Isabel Jewell and Charles Grappewin. The direction of William Wellman is worthy of high praise, and the production values instilled by Hunt Stromberg in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture.

"Freckles"

A soul-stirring drama of love and actor, filmed against a background of scenic splendour, was offered to the audience which attended the opening performance of "Freckles" at the Star Theatre last night. For the lovers of the outdoors, the film is a pictorial feast of towering trees, rushing streams, fertile valleys and glimpses of wild life rarely equalled on the screen. The camera captures all the beauty described in the Stratton-Porter's book. "Freckles" is a timeless orphane boy who wins an enviable place in the business world and the heart of the girl he loves through his courage and loyalty in the face of desperate odds. Tom Brown gives to the title role an interpretation whose subtle understanding and dramatic strength stamp him as one of the most capable of the younger screen players. Virginia Weidler, eight years old, gives a performance that is uncanny in its charm and realism. It is not acting, but the natural reactions of a mischievous yesterday given circumstances as portrayed by this talented child. As the girl beloved by "Freckles," Carol Stone, who makes her screen debut in the picture, gives all the sweetness and beauty that is required of the role. Characterizations which are worthy of praise are given by Lumsden Hare, James Buch, Addison Richards and Dick Alexander.

"The Music Goes Round"

With Harry Richman, Rochell
Hudson, Michael Bartlett and Walter Connolly holding down the principal roles and Ed Farley and Mike Riley composers of "The Music Goes Round" and "Around the World in 80 Days" pushing those valves down, Columbia's new musical film, "The Music Goes Round," opens at the Alhambra Theatre to-day. It should be said immediately that this film takes its place with the best of the right up to the minute in thought and action, serving up the newest jazz craze, "swing" rhythm; bringing over with gay songs, light romance, lovely dancing girls, and genuine comedy. It provides an hour and a half of complete diversion,
and a half of complete diversion.
Harry Richman is a welcome addition to film ranks. He is a born entertainer, an engaging personality, and gives a song everything it deserves. Miss Hudson is well cast opposite him. She is a live and pleasant little lady with plenty of talent. Connolly, naturally, is an excellent performer, that any-

BRITISH BUSINESS PICK-UP

ALL INDICATIONS GRATIFYING

London, July 8. For the first time this year the average level of wholesale prices showed an appreciable movement in June, rising to 0.8 per cent. above May and to 1.6 per cent. above June of last year.

Food prices rose by 1.2 per cent. and industrial materials and manufactures by 0.5 per cent. as compared with May. The index number of industrial materials was the highest recorded since October last.

The Ministry of Transport returns showed all round increases in British railways' passenger traffic, and in receipts therefrom, in the March quarter of last year. Freight carried during the twelve weeks ended March 21, and resultant receipts, were also larger for all classes as compared with the corresponding period of 1935. British Wireless.

COLLEGE WALL COLLAPSES

FORTUNATELY NO CASUALTIES

With a deep rumbling noise, a wall, twenty feet long, situated in the grounds of St. Paul's College, Glenageary, collapsed last night, fortunately without any casualties.

The wall, which was about six feet in height, surmounted the embankment on the east side of the narrow stone pathway leading to the inner gate of the College. Entering from the main gate, the pathway leads to the inner gate, taking a hair-pin bend about halfway. The wall which collapsed was situated just above this bend.

The collapse was apparently due to the recent rains. The debris blocked the pathway entirely, but this was later cleared away. The wall is said to have been built over ten years ago and was composed of brick and mortar.

The collapse occurred just after the evening classes for poor boys at the College had been closed, and it was fortunate there were no boys on the pathway at the time. The noise caused by the collapse was, however, caused some residents near-by to vacate their houses.

Five Killed In Experiment

EXPLOSION'S TOLL AT WOOLWICH

London, July 8.

Five persons were killed in an explosion in the Research Department at Woolwich Arsenal to-day.

The explosion occurred during an experiment. One of the dead is an official of the Department, Commander Long, who recently retired from the Navy after thirty years' service and had been employed in the Arsenal only thirteen months.

The other dead are two chemists and two labourers.—Reuter Bulletin Service.

SECRET WEAPON

Paris, July 8.

King Visits R.A.F. Bases

INSPECTS NEWEST WAR PLANES

London, July 8.

The inspection of the Royal Air Force stations to-day by the King, accompanied by the Duke of York, was the first occasion on which a British monarch had ever made such an aerial tour. The King, who wore the blue uniform of a Marshal of the Royal Air Force, flew in his own D. H. Dragon aeroplane from Windsor, and first visited the fighter station at Northolt, which forms part of the fighter command of the air defence of Britain.

His Majesty then proceeded by air to Wittering House, of the No. 11 "Fairey" Training School, recently formed in connection with the expansion of the force, where the pupils were paraded, and inspected the men's dining hall and mess arrangements and took luncheon in the officers' mess. The bomber station at Mildenhall was next visited. It forms part of the new bomber command, and here aircraft and the crews of squadrons were inspected.

At the Martlesham Heath aerodrome and armament experimental establishment, the King displayed keen interest in several aircraft including the Vickers single-seater fighter "Spitfire" 1st, which is a wing monoplane with an enclosed pilot's cockpit, of all metal construction, chiefly duralumin, with retractable under carriage. The "Spitfire" gave a demonstration of its terrific speed when it made a power dive and also showed its wonderful stability with a slow climb. The Bristol Blenheim also gave a most impressive display.

The "Hurricane" 1st, produced by Hawker Aircraft, Limited, also a single-seater long wing monoplane, with enclosed cockpit, and another Vickers single-seater fighter, unnamed, of low wing type, were also carefully examined. Other aeroplanes which were inspected included four medium bombers, two bomber transports, one general purpose Vickers Wellesley machine, and one Army co-operation aeroplane, at present unarmed, as well as the latest equipment.

The King was keenly interested in a new Handley Page medium bomber and he studied carefully the mechanism of the revolving gun turret of a "Demon" fighter. On the conclusion of the visit to Martlesham, the Royal party returned by air to Hendon.—British Wireless.

King's Son Files Suit For Divorce

New York, July 8.

Count Covedonga, son of the former King of Spain, filed suit for annulment of his marriage to a wealthy Spanish sugar planter's daughter to-day.

He alleges he was tricked into the marriage by false promises and that after their marriage the Countess admitted that her sole purpose in wedding him was to acquire a title.

He alleges the Countess had no intention of devoting her life to caring for her husband, and insisted upon living apart in a style he could not afford.—Reuter.

The Countess is also bringing suit for divorce on the grounds of incompatibility of temperaments.

NEW CAPITAL

London, July 8.

Issues of new capital in the United Kingdom during the first half of 1936 are returned at £108,980,000, as compared with £86,040,000 and £69,020,000 respectively in the corresponding periods of 1935 and 1934.—British Wireless.

PUBLIC OPINION HEEDED

The value of informed public opinion has been illustrated by the decision of the Government to give heed to the arguments recently advanced in the columns of the Press for the retention of privately-owned tents and similar structures on the Repulse Bay bathing beach. Happily, the proposed ban is not now to be enforced, and the result will mean much to those who do not happen to own matchsheds and who find the Repulse Bay beach, with adequate means of cheap transport thereto, practically the only bathing resort on the island which they are able to patronise. As the Bill dealing with the matter was originally drawn up, it was intended that private tents should be permitted on all matched beaches, within areas allotted and definitely marked off, but when the Bill came up for its first reading, the Government, for reasons which have not been disclosed, intimated that no tents whatever would be allowed at Repulse Bay. In response to public opinion, however, that ban will not now be persisted in, and the original general rules applicable to all matched beaches will also operate at Repulse Bay. There is one further point worthy of note. The original regulations contained no specific prohibition against the erection of tents in front of matchsheds, but, at the same time as the Repulse Bay ban was announced, it was also intimated that the Government did not intend to allow tents to occupy areas in front of sheds. As the original schedule is now being reverted to, it must be assumed that there will in future be no objection to tents in front of sheds, provided they are confined to areas specially marked off. So far as Repulse Bay is concerned, no other parts of the beach are available, since the undeveloped portion of the Lido, which has a considerable sea frontage, cannot be utilised, as the Government's lease to the Realty Company contains a proviso that no structures shall be permitted between the leased area and the sea. The position generally seems now to be quite clear—tents may be erected on any matched beach within allotted areas, and there is nothing to prevent such areas being marked off in front of matchsheds. Throughout the controversy, we took the stand that

IN BERLIN TO-DAY...

They Call a Spade A SYMBOL

by John BROPHY

A YOUNG man in a neat uniform, parading up and down before the wrought-iron gates of a castle—a country house would this time be a nearer, if less literal translation of schloss—and carrying at the slope of his shoulder—a spade.

Not a dirty spade, not a spade soiled with clay and sweat, but a new spade with the haft glistening with varnish and the metal highly burnished. A symbol.

For this castle, once the residence of a Brandenburg landowner, situated in a wood about twelve miles east of Berlin, is now a Gompulsory Labour Camp. Youths of sixteen or seventeen, as soon as they leave school, have to serve six months in one of these camps before commencing their conscript military service.

They dig, they drain marshes, they fell timber, they build roads. The work is heavy—it is said that many faint from exhaustion—and English boys would regard it as all the heavier for the squad drill which accompanies it, with much blowing of bugles and beating of drums.

name have vanished—the centre of the great boulevard is all sand and upturned clay, for they are making an extension of the Underground railway to take visitors out to the Olympic Games. Perhaps to a stranger there seems no need for that, no congestion of traffic—but it is work, and though the wages paid to the navvies, some of them former professional men, are little more than the "dole," while they work they need not think.

And they are working everywhere, rebuilding the grounds of the Radio Exhibition which was burned down last year, making great motor roads in all directions out of Berlin, building the stadiums for the Olympic Games and a model village for the thousands of competitors. After the Games, the village will become a barracks for the most efficient regiment in the Army.

And as you fly across Germany you see everywhere long straight roads with hardly a vehicle on them. There can be no doubt of their purpose. They are military roads designed to move troops, guns, ammunition and supplies to the frontiers with the utmost speed. They stretch north, south, east, west. No wonder there is poverty in Germany.

At Hanover aerodrome in the Customs Station there is an enormous mous weighing machine, big enough to weigh a grand piano or a prize ox.

A woman had brought a bunch of six roses from Holland. The Customs official laid them solemnly on the weighing machine. The finger moved so slightly that he had to lift his glasses to see what it recorded. Then he solemnly calculated, filled in a large form, and charged the woman the equivalent of three-halfpence.

BERLIN is pre-eminently a serious city. One sees preoccupied and anxious faces everywhere. And everybody wants to know what England thinks of the new Germany, of Hitler, of its Olympic Games. They are proud of their country, but it is a pride without confidence. Would a psychologist diagnose this as a symptom of an inferiority complex?

The serious faces one sees in the streets are not handsome either. The blonde Nordic type, the Nazi ideal of gold hair and pink cheeks, is very rare. The Berliner usually has dark, lustreless hair and a complexion of old, rather worn ivory.

Some of the men have good, clean-cut features, but it is difficult to find a woman with a face or a figure which would pass as even moderately attractive in another country.

Berlin is a man's city, run by men for men—serious men who have re-established the haufrau ideal.

COSMETICS are barred

A GERMAN told me proudly that I could go all over Berlin and yet not see "practically no women with painted faces."

It was an unkind thought, and I refrained from uttering it, but still the fact remains that I did think a little paint and powder might have improved these Berlin women. They would have nothing to lose

A variation is the Rake, also carried at the slope.

NO SMILES

—by Order

MY hosts were unable to obtain permission for me to see over the camp. Many forms would have to be filled in and long notice given. That is typical. The Nazis may be creating a new State, but they are leaving substantial tracts of the old Germany, including long forms to be filled in for almost everything.

So all I was able to see of the Labour Camp was the solemn youth keeping guard at the gate with the spotless ceremonial spade, and a squad of the young labourers being drilled, to drums and bugles, in the forecourt. The sergeant talked to them vehemently, and at length, before dismissing them, and when I asked the import of his fluent Prussian address, I was told he had noticed some of them grinning, and it wouldn't do, and before he had finished with them the grins would come off.

THE spade, however, does typify Berlin to-day. Everywhere there is work going on. The lime trees that gave the Unter den Linden its

NOTES OF THE DAY

Since the Great War the British Aircraft industry has been the world's chief exporter of all aeronautical material, but when the announcement was made some time ago that there was to be a considerable expansion of the Royal Air Force it was feared in many quarters that this would mean the stoppage of supplies for overseas buyers. In spite of the emergency demands of the Government for more aircraft equipment, the aircraft and aero-engine builders have not overlooked the needs of their customers abroad. In an official report recently issued it was stated that the total value of aircraft exports for 1935 was £2,721,441. This is the highest on record, and it exceeds the figure for 1934 by £800,339. European countries placed orders last year to the value of £204,403, on the value of orders placed in 1934. British manufacturers are rapidly expanding the British Air Force and at the same time increasing their export of machines to many countries in nearly all parts of the world.

the proposed rules were too greatly in favour of matchshed owners, and that there was no reason whatever why tents should not be allowed in front of sheds where no other area was available, provided they were kept within specified limits. With this method of solving the problem now agreed to, it is to be hoped that the authorities will apply the rules in as liberal a spirit as possible, keeping always in mind the needs of people of small means, who, had the proposed restrictions been enforced, would have been deprived of rights which the public generally should be permitted to enjoy.

SIDE GLANCES By George Clark

"I only wanted her to be able to play a few little pieces that people like. I had no idea she would take it so seriously."

Mr. Harold Scott, the celebrated English pianist who has been making a tour of the Far East, will give a recital at the Amateur Musical Association in Macao on Saturday, at 9.30 p.m. There is a not inconsiderable number of persons in the Macao Portuguese and Chinese communities who have a keen appreciation for good music and Mr. Scott's visit is being looked forward to with much interest.

"A solemn youth keeping guard with a spotless, ceremonial Spade."

and everything to gain by the experiment.

There are so many questions it is not either polite or tactful to ask in Berlin—your German friend grows uneasy, he looks over his shoulder, and even then he will not give you a direct answer.

But it is not difficult to make deductions from such silences and evasions. Berlin is still a city of secret fears, even though it is all dressed up for the arrival of the Olympic Games tourists—preparations are being made to accommodate no less than half-a-million, by the way, which seems optimistic even for a Fascist State.

Non-Aryans are forbidden to exhibit the Nazi emblems, and so their houses are clearly marked for patriotic butchers, grocers and other shopkeepers who like to charge excessive prices and behave rudely to those who dare not complain!

The Nazis have forbidden anyone to build a house with a flat roof. Flat roofs are Oriental, and therefore Jewish. The decree is obeyed, and no one laughs openly.

But it is a little odd to note flat roofs among the Olympic Games buildings, and huge pillars and causeways designed in a distinctly Oriental—in fact, a Babylonian—fashion. But perhaps some Nazi ideologist has been able to prove that Nebuchadnezzar was an Aryan after all.

EARS, EARS

Everywhere

It was odd, too, to go to the Scala, the big music-hall in Berlin, and find five out of the eight turns put on by obviously Jewish artists.

Austrian, American and Polish Jews, no doubt, but it looks as if the doctrine of racial purity had killed not only all the good German writers but all the good singers, dancers and comedians.

Not quite all, though. There was Grotz, as quaint and resourceful as ever. English people may be glad to know that he is still trying to push the piano towards the stool and hopping in and out of a broken chair.

Grotz is a Swiss, though the Berliners I talked to allowed one to assume he is German. Still, he is a portent, a reassurance, a comforting indication that Berlin may still have a sense of humour behind its serious face.

But it is well hidden on most occasions, for there are ears everywhere. The stranger who takes the next table to you in a restaurant may go away to make a report on your idle conversation. The man who comes to repair your telephone may leave a secret microphone hidden in the receiver, so that every word spoken—not only into the telephone but at any time in that room—may be taken down by an unknown listener and brought up in evidence against you.

Perhaps, after all, it is not difficult to guess why they all look so serious in Berlin.

CHINESE SECRET WAR MISSION IN LONDON

Seeking Arms, Planes, Money To Fight Japanese

NANKING IS READY IF HE SUCCEEDS

HOW BRITAIN MAY BE INDUCED TO LEND THE CASH

A DAPPER CHINESE NOW IN LONDON HOLDS IN HIS SMALL HANDS THE FATE OF TWO NATIONS—THE JAPANESE EMPIRE AND THE CHINESE REPUBLIC, ACCORDING TO THE LONDON SUNDAY DISPATCH.

His name is Tang Leang-hi. He is here on a special and secret mission for China's dictator, Chiang Kai-shek. The result of his mission may mean war, or peace, in the Far East. Tang's business is to make huge purchases of munitions and planes, and negotiate in the City for a loan.

While Canton extremists are trying to force the hands of the Nanking authorities, the High Command of the Nanking War Office is waiting to know the outcome of his mission.

Nanking is divided over the question of armed resistance to Japan. Chiang Kai-shek has been opposed to it on the ground that Nanking has not enough resources of money and munitions for a prolonged war.

Marshal Feng, despite all these difficulties of money and munitions, is urging for immediate armed resistance to Japan.

Between these two conflicting views a compromise has been found. The result is the visit to Europe of Tang Leang-hi. This Ambassador-at-Large, still in his early thirties, is not unknown in England.

He was in London only a few years ago as a writer and propagandist for Chinese Nationalism.

He was so successful with his campaign against the Communists in South China that he was made Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs at the age of thirty.

Unfortunately for China, he has little security to offer for the proposed London loan.

There are, of course, the customs receipts of Treaty ports and the lease of unfinished and newly projected railways in central China, but do they mean anything in the present chaotic condition of his country?

As against that there are political considerations of the highest import to British interests in China. Perhaps the Chinese Government can offer guarantees in the way of more facilities for British warships in the Yangtze to ensure payment of customs receipts.

Convict's Buried Gold Secret

LOCATION GIVEN IN COURT

Johannesburg, July 1. A box of gold bars valued at £3,000 is buried somewhere in the grounds where Johannesburg's Empire Exhibition is to open next September.

This was revealed in court to-day when a convict, a former railway clerk named Beyers, gave evidence against Major Fourie, one of the chiefs of the railway police, and Mr. Moses Fine, a Johannesburg business man, who appeared on allegations of being accessories after the fact.

Beyers is serving three years' hard labour for the theft of a box of gold in transit from Rhodesia to London in February, 1934. The loss was only discovered when the box was opened in London.

After admitting the theft, Beyers to-day gave evidence that he sold a third of the proceeds and buried the remainder in the show grounds. While on bail awaiting trial Major Fourie and Mr. Fine, he alleged, approached him and suggested that he should reveal the hiding place and share the profits, Beyers getting £1,100 and the costs of his trial and Fourie £500.

Beyers said that the gold was still there, but refused to assist the Crown in its recovery as "that was what he was serving his sentence for."

Defending counsel asked the Court to order Beyers to reveal the name of the purchaser of the third portion of the gold and also where the balance of it was buried.

After hearing the evidence many spectators left the crowded Court, hurriedly secured picks and shovels, and proceeded to the show grounds where a miniature treasure hunt was unsuccessfully attempted before the authorities stopped it.

Wilkins Plans New Under Ice Dash

SIR HUBERT WILKINS, daredevil explorer, will shortly embark on the most thrilling adventure of his hazardous career—an attempt to reach the North Pole by submarine.

Several years ago he tried, without success, to make an extensive Polar exploration under seas. Now he is to make a second attempt, which he is confident will succeed.

His new submarine, which is being built at Harrow-in-Furness, will cost at least £20,000, and will carry a crew of nine, including three scientists.

It will travel under the ice, along the sea bed, and will be equipped

Robot Charts Hot Air Belt High In Ozone

Sydney, July 1. Radio experiments just completed by Dr. D. F. Martyn and O. O. Filly, of Sydney University, have demonstrated the possibility of exploring the entire stratosphere for a distance of 150 miles above the earth without the necessity of further dangerous ascensions.

Except for the possibility of ascertaining whether the stratosphere constitutes a medium for speedy aerial travel, the two Sydney scientists are convinced that all necessary information about the earth's upper atmosphere can now be obtained from the earth itself.

Under the system invented and thoroughly demonstrated by Dr. Martyn, the upper air can now be probed by radio signals.

His new method gives accurate data on the amount of electrification, the amount of ozone, and the temperature throughout the whole thickness of the upper air from 22 up to 150 miles.

ROBOT DOES ALL WORK. The new type apparatus which Dr. Martyn has perfected consists of a robot that sends out signals, catches the echoes, varies the wave length and plots all the information obtained on a tiny chart.

One of the first discoveries made by Dr. Martyn with his new invention was that there is still another cold layer of air far above the stratosphere cold layer recently reached by Russian and American balloonists. Between the two cold layers there lies sandwiched a warm layer, and it is in this latter that Dr. Martyn thinks that stratosphere flying might become a possibility.

According to the radio records made by Dr. Martyn, temperatures again dip in the second stratosphere above the earth in reaching a minimum at 50 miles above the earth's surface.

From these upward the temperatures increase till they end in a torrid zone at 150 miles of altitude.

FORMER THEORY UPSET. Dr. Martyn's radio reports contradict the belief of Professor Appleton, who was convinced this zone was hot only in summer. Martyn's experiments show that the seasonal drop is only from 1,300 to 1,000 degrees.

As a consequence, Dr. Martyn declares, that the earth is perpetually girdled by a fiery ring of inconceivably rarefied air, in which, necessarily, no human activity could ever be hoped for.

Measurements of the upper ozone show fluctuations exactly corresponding to barometric measures on the ground, but antedating them. As a consequence weather forecasts, Dr. Martyn declares, can be made from these radio probes of the air.

Australian authorities are so impressed with Dr. Martyn's findings, that modern ozone measures are now being installed at the Commonwealth Weather Bureau, the Solar Observatory at Canberra, and at the installation of the Council for Scientific and Industrial Research—United Press.

Shipowner Baronet In Divorce Suit

A 62-YEARS-OLD baronet who is a Lloyd's underwriter and shipowner is the respondent to a divorce petition which has been set down for hearing during the current Divorce Court term in London.

He is Sir William Garthwaite, owner of the last square-rigged ocean-going ship under the British flag.

The suit is listed as Garthwaite, J. (Lady) v. Garthwaite, Sir William (Galle Intervening). She was married to Sir William 25 years ago.

Sir William, who won fame as a sportsman in his younger days, has always maintained that training in a sea-going sailing ship is an essential part of the education of a boy destined for a sea career.

SAN FRANCISCO CHINATOWN IS INSURED FULLY

San Francisco, July 1. San Francisco's famous Chinatown is one of the most completely insured areas in the United States, local insurance brokers say.

One factor that makes insurance agents especially eager to grant policies to Chinese is their willingness not only to exempt "acts of God," but also to exempt all damages resulting from Tong wars. The two are placed on a basis of equality, at least as far as insurance is concerned.

However, according to Wentworth S. Wright, broker, the real reason for the heavy insurance carried in Chinatown lies in the fact that the Chinese are one of the originators of insurance. The idea of spreading risks originated with them thousands of years ago and has become a definite part of their psychology and practice.

Wright declares the Chinese are particularly honest in their handling of insurance affairs. They comply rigidly with the provisions of an insurance contract and in the settlement of claims. It is seldom a fraudulent claim is ever presented.

Almost every form of insurance is used by the inhabitants of Chinatown. It is not uncommon to find a moderate-sized business covered by accident,

The volume, an exhaustive dissertation on the finer points of thievery, is the only known surviving text dealing exclusively with the "art of stealing."

Stealing as an art has a traditional place in the East, and the subject is said to have been exploited in numerous Indian texts. Sanskrit literature contains numerous references to the practice of stealing, and Indologists had long hoped that a text would be uncovered.

In 1900 an obscure reference was circulated among learned circles, but it was not until last year that Dr. Brown discovered the Hindu manual while poring over some miniature paintings in manuscript in the library of the Asiatic Society of Bengal in Calcutta.

WHILE MAKING photographs of these miniatures, Dr. Brown was approached by a pundit who thought that the rare text might be of interest to him. In Dr. Brown's opinion, the palm-leaf manuscript probably was copied from an original sometime between the 13th and 17th centuries.

The language of the text is not of a high order of literary Sanskrit, and the writer drew no line between magic and religious ritual. But the charm of the most ambitious. In one section of the manuscript, charms are described which, if properly prepared under auspicious conditions, would give a person control over fire, water, disease, poison, armies, provide supernatural sight, and the power of becoming invisible.

OFFERED LOVE SECRET. Likewise, this wondrous potion would allow a person to travel at the speed of light, gain all men's confidence, and all women's love.

A sample prescription, translated by Dr. Brown, calls for a concoction that contains the eyes of a snake, a crane, and a mouse; to which is to be added the blood of a peacock. This product, if washed and carried in the mouth, will cause the subject to achieve great beauty.

Moreover, the greatest of thieves in Hindu fiction is said to have used these pills to assist him in his exploits.

Another says that "he who will make a pill of an osprey's eye, a vulture's eye, and a parrot's eye, with a buffalo's blood and hold it in his mouth will vanish from sight."

And "ought to," Prof. Brown adds. —United Press.

LAWN BOWLS

SEMI-FINALS REACHED

BY NORONHA AND DA SILVA

CHAMPIONSHIP RESULTS

J. E. Noronha and F. X. da Silva yesterday joined W. Greig and W. Mair in the semi-final of the Colony open pairs lawn bowls championship, and two matches in the quarter-finals now remain to be decided.

In the open singles yesterday, A. M. Holland and H. A. Alves advanced to the last sixteen.

Holland played consistently good bowls to beat R. G. Craig by 21 shots to 15, the match finishing on the 21st head. The K.C.C. player led all the way and scored on a dozen heads. Holland established an early and vital lead, although Craig threatened it when he pulled up from love-six to 5-7. However the K.C.C. player could not maintain his form and Holland went further ahead and established a winning advantage.

ALVES GOING STRONG

H. A. Alves, strongly favoured in some quarters to win the title, encountered some little difficulty in disposing of J. M. Jack by 21 shots to 10. The match went to 23 heads thanks chiefly to Jack's big effort towards the close.

The players were evenly matched with the scores level after the first 13 heads. Alves clinched the argument by securing a four on the last head.

Both players bowled well and Alves will require a good deal of beating on his present form.

Complete results of yesterday's matches follow.

OPEN SINGLES

(Third Round)

A. M. Holland beat R. G. Craig (after 21 heads) 21-15

H. A. Alves beat J. M. Jack (after 23 heads) 21-10

OPEN PAIRS

(Third Round)

J. S. Landolt and D. Rumjahn beat C. Roza-Pereira and G. C. Silva 27-19

J. Noronha and F. X. da Silva beat L. Glendenning and J. Shepherd 27-15

OPEN RINKS

(Second Round)

J. Watson, R. Hall, F. J. Fraser and W. Macfarlane (skip) beat P. E. Knight, J. Gellatley, W. H. Collier and J. F. Macgowan (skip) 31-11.

HELD TO A DRAW

YESTERDAY'S TENNIS

C.R.C. CONCEDE 3½ SETS

Civil Service Cricket Club sprang a surprise on the K.C.C. when they met in a "B" Division league tennis match at Happy Valley yesterday. K.C.C., strongly favoured to win, had to rest content with half a point after leading four sets to two at the end of the second round.

The visitors lost two sets unexpectedly. Shuttle and Todd beat Burnett and Watson after falling badly in the other K.C.C. pairs, while Bendall and Agafuroff overcame Gray and Crawford after they had shown good form in the first two sets.

Actually Mackay and Polglase came to the visitors' rescue, securing a set and a half. Honours of the match went to Bendall and Agafuroff who won all three sets with surprising ease. They jumped into early and lengthy leads in each set, actually leading Gray and Crawford four-love. Then the K.C.C. couple staged a recovery and broke through Agafuroff's keen and accurate service.

K.C.C. were without Teddy Ramsey, but C. E. Watson made a useful deputy, playing very strongly in the first set. He and Burnett, however, lacked the much understanding and the opposition often pierced their gaps.

The loss of this point has, to all intents and purposes, put Kowloon Cricket Club out of the running for league honours. They can, by winning the remainder of their games, finish runners-up.

C.R.C. ARE VULNERABLE

That C.R.C. (1) are vulnerable was clearly demonstrated by Central British Association, on record to date the weakest team in the division, who collected three and a half sets from the potential champions.

Wilson and Ferguson, who used to play together was back in 1931 for the Y.M.C.A. renewed an old-time partnership and had the satisfaction and distinction of winning two sets.

Chinese R.C.C. by no means had things their own way and if Hecrolo can turn out anything like a full team against them they may yet suffer the indignity of defeat.

County Cricket Must Be Made More Interesting

CAMBRIDGE WINS

VARSITY CRICKET ENCOUNTER

THE BRILLIANT BROCKLEBANK

UPSETS OXFORD BATSMEN

Cambridge to-day won the annual inter-varsity cricket match at Lord's for the fifth time since 1925, and for the second year in succession. They beat Oxford by eight wickets after having the better of the game from the first over.

P. Brocklebank was the hero for Cambridge, his first innings bowling enforcing Oxford to follow-on. He also bowled extremely well in the second innings, and in the course of the match took ten wickets for 139 runs. His figures were:

1st Innings 4 for 47
2nd Innings 6 for 82

Consistent batting enabled Cambridge to compile the useful score of 442 for 9 declared. R. P. Nelson helped himself to 91 while N.V.D. Yardley lost his wicket after contributing 90. Both were unfortunate to miss the coveted century.

Oxford faced poorly and could not avoid the follow-on, being all out for 209. They did but little better in the second innings, totalling 239, of which N. Mitchell-Innes hit up 84. Left to score 17 to win, Cambridge hit off the runs for the loss of two wickets.—Reuter.

ONCE IN 12 YEARS

Oxford have won the inter-varsity cricket match but once during the last twelve years. In 1921 they won by eight wickets. Last year Cambridge won by 191 runs. The complete records of the results since 1925 inclusive follow.

HIS THIRD WORLD OLYMPICS

Germany's Finest Breast-Stroker

Berlin. Erwin Sietas, Germany's first string man for the 200 metres breast stroke event at the coming Olympics, has made the German Olympic Team for the third consecutive time.

He was on the team both at Amsterdam, in 1928, and at Los Angeles, in 1932. Each time he reached the finals, and each time he placed fourth; just nosed out of winning a medal.

At Amsterdam Sietas' time was 2:50.0 minutes. In front of him finished Tsuruta, the Japanese sailor, Erich Rademacher, then Germany's hope to win the gold medal, and Ydefonso, Philippines.

At Los Angeles, Sietas swam exactly ten seconds faster. But while that would have been fast enough for him to win the gold medal at Amster-

NEW SYSTEM WANTED

THE "FOR-AGAINST" METHOD ADVOCATED

(By a Special Correspondent.)

During the winter many of the first-class cricket counties reported—and deplored—decreased attendances at county matches in 1935, with consequent serious loss of revenue. No real attempt, however, seems to have been made to get at the basic cause of this apparent loss of interest in the County Championship.

Reducing the charge of admission after tea, and of second eleven games, will not lure the missing thousands into the county grounds. Something more drastic must be done—the County Championship itself must be made more interesting.

Many methods of reckoning points have been tried and discarded, and it can scarcely be maintained that the system at present in force even approaches perfection. Any competition decided by percentages is too complicated and involved. Moreover, the points given for a first innings lead in a drawn game, lead, in many cases, to unfair anomalies.

What is required is a system in which every run scored and wicket taken has a value and an effect irrespective of the weather. There is only one method of reckoning points which fulfils this requirement—the "For-Against" system.

The foundation of this method is the difference between the average runs per wicket scored for a county and against it. Take a simple example:

In 28 county matches Mudshire scores 10,000 runs for the loss of 400 wickets, while its opponents make 8,500 runs for the loss of 500 wickets. Mudshire's record might, therefore, read as follows:

	P	W	L	For	Agst.	Diff.	Pts.
Mudshire	28	10	5	25.00	17.00	8.00	138

Obviously every run scored and wicket taken has had a value and has influenced this result. The effect of weather has been practically eliminated, and even the closing stages of a drawn game might have a vital effect upon a side's final position.

It may be objected with some justice that such a system would tend to produce "safety first" batting methods and stodgy strategy. To obviate this possibility 10 points are given for every match won outright, and 4 points deducted for every lost match. The points so obtained are added to the difference between the averages "for" and "against," and Mudshire's record now reads:

	P	W	L	For	Agst.	Diff.	Pts.
Mudshire	28	10	5	25.00	17.00	8.00	138

With ten points for a win and a penalty of only four points for a loss, the system is simple and effective. (Continued on Page 9.)

DIP AND A SPLASH

"Y" SWIMMERS TRY-OUT

LAST NIGHT'S GALA

Y.M.C.A. swimmers tried themselves out against the clock for the first time this season at the "Y" pool last night when most of them found themselves in need of a race or two. The gala was more of a social function than a serious swimming contest and nothing startling was done in the way of times.

A youngster to gain surprising prominence in good company was P. Anslow, hitherto only a fair performer. Last night he beat R. Goldman from the same mark by a touch, registering 27½ sec for the 50 yards, with H. G. Lange, who conceded him a second, a few strokes behind.

Anslow has gained speed since last summer and should prove a strong string to the "Y" bow this year.

"C" Company of the East Lancs proved too strong for the "Y" water polo team, winning two goals to nil.

OPENING OF GREEN

NEXT SUNDAY

WILL PLAY IN LEAGUE 1937

Kowloon Tong Garden City Association, having adopted tennis and badminton with enthusiasm and some success, will now turn its attention to lawn bowls. On Sunday the bowling green will be used for the first time since it was laid down 18 months ago.

The opening will be quite informal, but some members of neighbouring clubs, including the Kowloon Cricket Club and Kowloon Bowling Green Club have been invited to participate in the first match.

The green is the largest in the Colony, and thanks to the careful attention of the green ranger, has the makings of one of the best greens in Hongkong.

At the present time it is somewhat on the heavy side, but it is expected to roll out faster after a few months of use.

Quite a number of K.T.G.C.A. members have displayed interest in the development of lawn bowls at the club, several of them already being regular league players for other clubs.

Next season it is hoped the Association will enter a team in the lawn bowls league.

GERMANY'S HOPES FOR SUCCESSES IN FIELD EVENTS AT THE WORLD OLYMPICS

Discus-Thrower Schroeder May Win Gold Medal

Berlin. Germany's chances for winning Olympic medals are best in the weight section of the field events. Here, German fans do not merely hope, but expect the Fatherland's representation to garner several of the much coveted trophies, including a gold medal.

Popular hopes for a gold medal are being pinned first and foremost on Willi Schroeder in the discus throw. The lanky, husky old policeman ranked first on last year's world list with a heave of 53.10 metres, which constituted a new official world record that still stands.

Athletic experts, however, are dubious about Schroeder's chances of winning the gold medal. They think him far too unsteady in form to warrant such optimism. Many of these doubting Thomases prefer Harald Andersson, Sweden, to Schroeder.

There is much to that contention. Andersson, the former world record holder, who last year attained second place on the list with a mark of 53.02 metres has proved himself a rather steady performer throughout his career. So far he has not quite reached his marks of last year. Yet he has not been much behind either.

MODEL UNSTEADINESS
Schroeder, on the other hand, is almost a model case of unsteadiness. After making his world record mark, which was very early last season, he went constantly back in his form. Marks he attained in competition later in 1935 fell short of his record by six, seven and even more metres, which caused his world record to be questioned abroad, especially in Sweden.

Nor is this degeneration in form new with Schroeder. The same thing happened in 1934 when he was still in the German shot-put squad. Then, too, after a good start early in the season he came down in form, more and more.

This season, though, Willi Schroeder is there again, like Phoenix emerging from the embers. As early as April, with the season barely started, he achieved a throw of 52.20 metres. The question experts now ask is: Will Willi's form hold, or will he, after a good start, again dwindle down to ignominy?

But even with Schroeder out, Germany's chances are not altogether shattered. Last year's third string in the discus, Ernst Lampert, is coming along finely. Last year he ranked ninth on the world list with a mark of 49.32 metres. During the inter-season training he had been showing gradual but constant improvement and in May he bested Schroeder's 1936 mark by throwing the discus 52.82 metres, the best heave of the year, so far. Moreover, Lampert possesses what Schroeder so deplorably lacks, steadiness in form.

There is still a third German athlete who might find his way into the Olympic discus event. He is Otto Wuerfelsdöbler who, last year, with a mark of 49.36 metres ranked eighth on the world list—one ahead of Lampert—and who, according to reports from the Olympic hopes' training quarters is shaping up nicely.

IN WORLD LIST
Rankings on last year's world list were: Schroeder, Germany, 53.10; Harald Andersson, Sweden, 53.02; Dunn, U.S.A., 52.01; Berg, Sweden, 51.55; Carpenter, U.S.A., 50.41; Soerli, Norway, 50.19; Petty, U.S.A., 49.70; Wuerfelsdöbler, Germany, 49.36; Lampert, Germany, 49.32; Laborde, U.S.A., 49.27.

In the shot-put Germany's chances appear not quite as good. On last year's list the best German, Hans Woelke, placed second while the two next best Germans placed eleventh and twelfth.

But Woelke, like Schroeder, a policeman, may hold his place in the Olympic competition. His best mark last year was 16.33 metres. This may not sound much if compared with Jack Forrester's mark of 16.99 metres, the best he was credited with last season. Nevertheless, it seems a good enough mark for second place as it is by a good many inches better than that of the second string American, John Lyman, whose best mark of last year was 16.07 metres with which he placed third on the list.

Moreover, Woelke this season achieved already 16.24 metres. As he does not usually get into his stride before the middle of the season, this is quite a good beginning. Jack Forrester, according to reports available here, so far this season has hung up 16.43 metres as his best mark.

The only other athlete to get beyond the sixteen metre mark last year was Viljo, Estonia, who with 16.05 metres placed fourth. Next ranked: Dunn, U.S.A., 15.99; Dore, Hungary, 15.77; Berg, Sweden, 15.75; Baerland, Finland, 15.74; Number nine and ten ranked Dees and Reynolds, U.S.A., neither of whom will probably figure as Olympic entries, whereby the following two, the Germans Schroeder, the discus man, and Gerhard Stecke, Germany's hope for the Decathlon and Javelin, are automatically moving up. The Czech Douda, third in the shot-put at Los lost match every captain would be encouraged to go all out for the ten points. The result would be bright and more interesting, and more vital cricket, for no county could hope to gain a high place in the championship table unless it had a reasonably large number of wins.

Cricket Must Be More Interesting

In 1935 the first seven counties finished in the following order:

	1st Inn.	2nd Inn.	3rd Inn.	4th Inn.	5th Inn.	6th Inn.	7th Inn.	8th Inn.	9th Inn.	10th Inn.	Points
Yorkshire	24	10	1	2	7	420	521	71.33
Derbyshire	22	10	6	4	2	420	264	65.09
Middlesex	24	11	5	6	1	305	202	46.11
Lancashire	22	12	6	4	1	420	227	54.04
Nottingham	22	10	8	4	6	420	213	50.71
Leicestershire	21	11	9	2	2	350	181	50.27
Sussex	22	13	10	3	2	420	232	48.33

Had the "For-Against" system been in force the table and positions would have been:

	Average	Total
Yorkshire	11.14	111.4
Derbyshire	10.23	102.3
Lancashire	10.23	102.3
Nottingham	10.23	102.3
Leicestershire	10.23	102.3
Sussex	10.23	102.3
Middlesex	10.23	102.3
Derbyshire	10.23	102.3
Leicestershire	10.23	102.3
Sussex	10.23	102.3

It will be noted that when every run scored and wicket taken have a value considerable changes take place in the order.

Yorkshire's superiority in 1935 is more adequately represented by a lead of 59.04 points than by a difference in percentage of 8.00. Middlesex, owing to weak batting, drop from third to sixth place. Lancashire move from fourth to third, and Sussex from seventh to fourth. Nottingham remain in the fifth position, but Leicestershire—also as a result of poor batting—drop to seventh. Can it be contended that the "For-Against" order is not a more equitable representation of the all-round strengths of the seven counties than that produced by the percentage system?

The following points in connection with the suggested method of reckoning points are worthy of consideration:

1. Enterprise and willingness to take a reasonable risk in order to win outright are rewarded. Even when the attempt fails the penalty is not overwhelming. Under the percentage system a county in the top half of the table is more heavily penalised for a defeat than a more lowly-placed side.
2. By making every run and wicket count interest in a match is sustained to the last ball, whether the game is won outright or drawn.
3. No county is unduly penalised by bad weather. Under the percentage system it is possible for weather to be the deciding factor in the winning of the championship.
4. Finally, percentages are banished, and the table becomes something that any man, even if he is not an accountant, can understand.

In a word, the "For-Against" system of reckoning points might convert the county cricket championship into a live—and livelier—competition.

AVIATION should be a Blessing: to-day it is EUROPE'S CURSE

"I TELL the House that I have been made almost physically sick to think that I and my friends and statesmen in every country in Europe, two thousand years after our Lord was crucified, should be spending our time thinking how we can get the mangled bodies of children to hospital and how we can keep the poison gas from going down the throats of our people."

Since Mr. Baldwin made that statement in the House of Commons in 1935, the conscience of the world has received a profound shock.

Italy, a country looked upon by many of us as one of the greatest centres of culture and European civilisation, has broken her international agreements forbidding the use of poison gas, and poured it indiscriminately from the heavens upon Abyssinian villages.

To-day a few thousand peasants in Walla are groping their way down the dark years of a dictator, whose name they have never heard of, but whose decree of ruthlessness has put out their eyes.

Wallo is a long way from Charing Cross—yes, but not for aeroplanes. Is it not time that the peoples of Europe asked their statesmen, "Whither to-morrow?"

THE author of this article was a flying officer during the war and served with the R.A.F. from 1927 to 1932, being mentioned in dispatches during the last air operations against the Kurds. He was member of the special committee on International Aviation set up by the League of Nations in 1934, and is the author of a recently published book, "Humanity, Air Power and War."

erous toy, yet the outbreak of the World War soon demonstrated its value as a fighting weapon.

This fact once realised, the new art of flying found itself promoted from a poverty-stricken hobby of the scientifically minded, or youthfully adventurous, to the first consideration of desperate Governments.

The brains and wealth of these Governments were lavished upon the science of flight, and it has well been said that war was the birth of aviation. Aviation, if still prostituted to war, will be the death of civilisation.

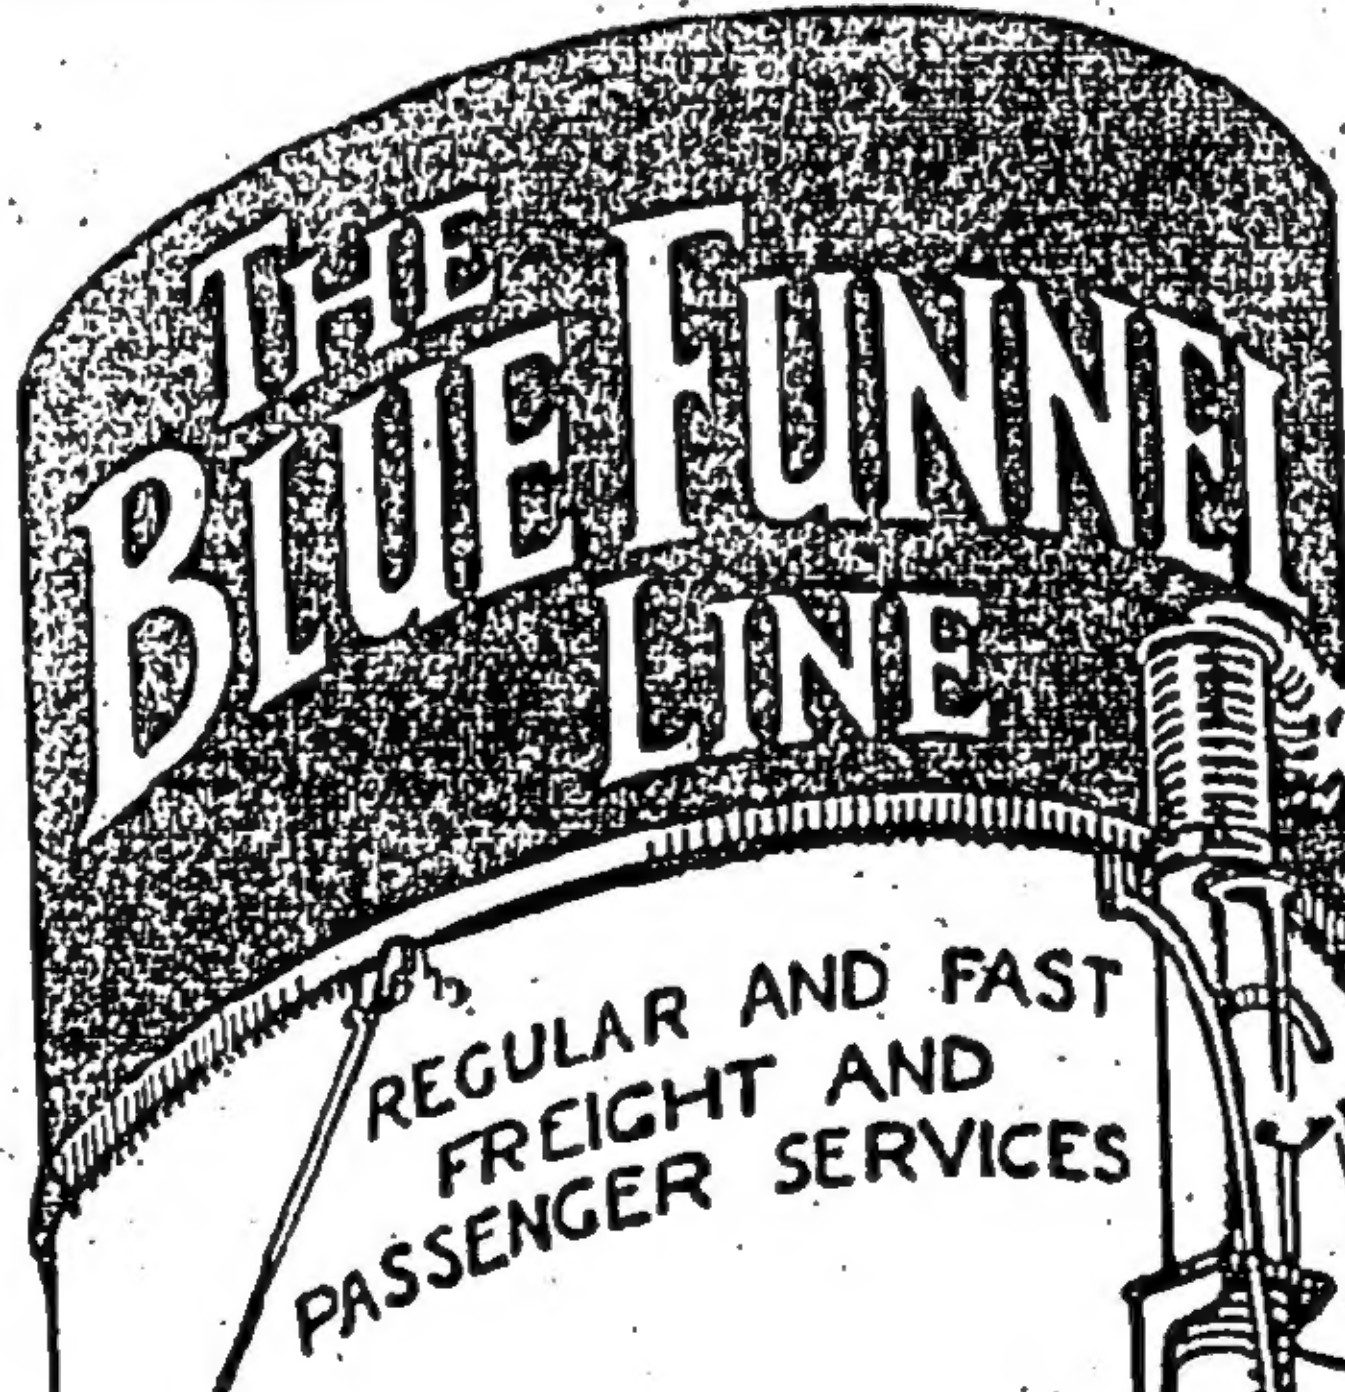

The increase in Air Power up to 1918 is well known—the increase in its destructive powers since that date is not yet realised outside official circles.

General Groves, in his book, "Behind the Smoke Screen," writes: "Whereas in the late war some 300 tons of bombs were dropped in this country by the Germans, air forces to-day could drop almost the same amount in the first twenty-four hours and continue this scale of attack indefinitely." This statement has never been challenged.

THE same author throws valuable light upon how such power will be used in the next war. He says: "In Europe, warfare, hitherto primarily an affair of fronts, will be henceforth primarily an affair of areas. In this war of areas the aim of such belligerents will be to bring pressure to bear upon the enemy people so as to force them to oblige their government to sue for peace."

The position, then, is clear for all to see. The targets for these cannot be accomplished unless civil aviation is also removed from the hands of National Governments.

There are no insuperable difficulties preventing the Governments of Europe from creating an international authority empowered to control all main air traffic.

Such an institution would be given the power to buy out all existing companies.

It would be solely responsible for all aerodromes, pilots and ground staff, the personnel being recruited upon an international basis, and their training in bombing and other forms of military aviation forbidden.

They would also be solely responsible for orders for material, by means of which they could, in due course, influence the whole aircraft industry from a national into an international basis.

GOVERNMENT subsidies towards aviation, if and when necessary, would be made only through this international organisation, and thus would no longer have a military bias or bias. Discipline within the air world would be maintained by their own international Air Police—much as our railways keep special police for their own purposes.

By this method the national frontiers of Europe could no longer hinder the flight of machines. Aerodromes would be flooded by night and machines plying their way twenty-four hours in the day as is the case in America.

UNDER the present circumstances, national and military considerations have strangled the one great asset of the aeroplane—speed.

Foreign machines may not travel direct routes, because of "strategic" areas and needs, and may not travel at night.

There is no practical reason why the aeroplane should not be international. It is only being prevented by military prejudices.

Aviation should be a blessing—to-day it is Europe's curse. It will become a benefit to humanity only when it is removed out of the hands of the Nationalists and used for world service.

LIBEL ACTION BY 118 WARDERS MASS ACTION AGAINST A WOMAN LAWYER

PARIS, JUNE 21.
TO-DAY THE WAY IS CLEAR FOR AN ASSIZE COURT TRIAL BY JURY THAT WILL MAKE LEGAL HISTORY FOR THAT TRIBUNAL AND FOR FRANCE. THE SUIT IS AT THE INSTANCE OF 118 WARDERS EMPLOYED ON THE DEVIL'S ISLE GROUP OF PENAL SETTLEMENTS AND THE DEFENDANT IS MME. MIREILLE MAROGER, WOMAN WRITER AND LAWYER.

Recently married, the defendant wrote, during a honeymoon spent in the region, a series of articles for the French Press in which she made charges of cruelty and misconduct against the warders collectively, basing her charges on information obtained from prisoners.

The matter first came before a lower court on the instructions of one warder who had been asked by his colleagues to act for them during his holiday in France.

The court took fifteen days to consider its ruling on the point of law as to whether, being Government officials, the plaintiffs could claim the right to go before a jury instead of having the claim settled by the lower court.

The decision now rendered is that the case must be tried by the Higher Court before a jury as early as convenient.

This will create an unusual difficulty for the authorities, because it will be necessary that the whole staff of warders be released from service in order to attend for the case, which is likely to be heard in the autumn.

It will be necessary to repatriate in France a number of the prisoners so that they can give evidence in support of the allegations made by the woman writer.

Britain Says 'Pay Up!'

BRITAIN has asked her debtor nations—who owe more than £200,000,000—to pay up.

It was hoped that satisfactory agreements would be reached before the second half of the year began—on July 1.

That is the day on which half-yearly interest payments on most of the debts are due.

Brazil, Rumania, Argentina, Mexico, and Germany are the chief debtor countries, and the British creditors are bankers who have granted loans and overdrafts and manufacturers who have shipped goods but have not received payments.

Proposals will be made under which all the money due to these countries for goods they have sent here will be placed to the credit of a central fund in London, which will then be used to meet the obligations due to British creditors.

Debts due from German importers and municipalities are being dealt with under a separate agreement. British creditors who have hitherto granted a moratorium are now saying Germany can afford to pay.

SANDWICH NO MORE

Rome, July 1.

The Italian will no longer eat his "sandwich."

The word has been banished from the language, for it owes its origin to a famous earl in a "sanctionist" country.

Now it will be known as "pampieri," which means mixed bread.

TUBERCULOSIS TOLL HALVED

London, June 26.

Sir Kingsley Wood, the Minister of Health, commented on the steady decline in tuberculosis in this country when laying the foundation stone of a new Nurses' Home at Papworth Village Settlement, near Cambridge.

Sir Kingsley said that tuberculosis was no longer the great white plague; it was curable, if taken in time.

In 1911, before the setting up of the National Scheme for combating the disease, there were over 63,000 deaths from all forms of tuberculosis. In 1935 the deaths had declined to some 29,000.

It was a proud boast of Papworth that not one of the many children of tuberculosis parents who had lived in the settlement had developed the disease.

Enter the New WAISTCOAT JUMPER

In Lemon &
Emerald
by MARY GRACE

- ♦ Fashionable
- ♦ Slimming
- ♦ Quickly-Knit

THERE'S a real holiday spirit about this new waistcoat jumper.

Why not knit it up for your fortnight away, in some pretty colour—while lemon or sky, with a vivid contrasting scarf and buttons, for a cruise or the seaside; in brighter gay tones for holidays at foot.

It's a quick-knitter, and looks very slim, believe me. The materials for making it are as follows:—

Materials: 11 oz. of "Anlaby" Speedwool, 1 pr. of No. 5 pins, 1 pr. No. 7 pins, 8 buttons.

Measurements: Length from shoulder to point, 21½ ins.; width across back underarm, 16½ ins.; width across each front, 9 ins.; sleeve length from shoulder, 8 ins.; tension 9 sts. and 12 rows to 2 ins.

The Back

Cast on 64 sts. K. into back 1st row, then work 3 rows Garter st. Then change to pattern.

Row 1 to 4: *K4, P4, repeat from * to end of row.

Rows 5 to 8: *P4, K4, repeat from * to end of row.

These 8 rows form pattern.

Work until 3 ins. from start. Then change to No. 7 pins and work 2 ins. Change to No. 5 pins, work 8 ins. (Work should now measure 13 ins. from the start.)

Shape Armholes: K2 tog. at each end of every row until 40 sts. remain (to dec. of 8 sts. each side). Work on these 48 sts. for 6 ins.

Shape Shoulders: Work 10 sts. cast off 10, work 10. Work on each set of 10 sts. for one inch. Knitting 2 sts. tog. at neck edge every row until 12 sts. remain.

Shape Neck: Cast off 6 sts. at beg. of the 2 armhole end rows.

Right Front

With No. 5 pins cast on 31 sts. K. into back 1st row. 2nd row: K. 3rd row: K. twice into 1st st. K. to end. 4th row: K. to last st. K. twice into last st. (33 sts.)

5th row: K. twice into 1st st. K4. Turn P4. K4. P4. K4. K3.

6th row: K. twice into 1st st. K2. P4. K4. P4. Turn (K4, P4 twice).

7th row: K. twice into 1st st. K3. P4. K4. P4. Turn (K4, P4 twice).

8th row: K. twice into 1st st. K3. P4. K4. P4. Turn (K4, P4 twice).

Lip Service

LIPSTICK is made to enhance, not betray, its user. But if Nature has endowed you with thin lips, practice increasing them slightly.

Take the rouge right out to the edges and, if you are skilful with this kind of thing, smooth it out a little beyond the normal line.

(P4, K4 twice), Turn (P4, K4 twice), P4, K1.

13th row: K. twice into 1st st. (P4, K4 3 times). Turn. (P4, K4 3 times) K2.

14th row: K. twice into 1st st. K1. (P4, K4 3 times), P4. Turn. (K4, P4 3 times), K7.

15th row: K. twice into 1st st. K2. Work to end of row.

Continue in pat. now, keeping 4 sts. at shaped edge in Garter st. until straight edge of work measures one inch. Then make a buttonhole in the Garter st. border. K2, cast off 2. Work to end of row. On returning row work to where sts. were cast off in previous row, cast on 2, K2.

Continue now in pat., making another buttonhole on every 14th and 15th row following.

When straight edge of work measures 3½ ins. Change to No. 7 Pins and work 2½ ins. Change to No. 5 pins, work 8 ins. (31 ins. from start.)

Shape Armholes: K2 tog. at beg. of every armhole end row until 32 sts. remain (to dec. of 8 sts. each side). Work on these 40 sts. for 6 ins.

Shape Shoulders: Cast off 10 sts. at neck edge. Continue on remaining 30 sts., knitting 2 sts. tog. every row at neck edge until 12 sts. remain.

Shape Neck: Cast off 6 sts. at beg. of the 2 armhole end rows.

With No. 5 pins cast on 40 sts. K4 rows Garter st. Then continue in pat., knitting twice into 1st and last st. of every 4th row until 62 sts. on pin.

Shape Shoulders: Cast off 6 sts. at beg. of 2 armhole end rows.

With No. 5 pins cast on 40 sts. K4 rows Garter st. Then continue in pat., knitting twice into 1st and last st. of every 4th row until 62 sts. on pin.

Save-Time Savouries

WHEN you come home to-night the family won't want to wait long for something to eat.

These nourishing savouries are quickly made.

Shrimp and Tomato Pie

Tempting and nourishing is shrimp and tomato pie.

Put the pulp of four tomatoes into a greased pie dish, stir in a cupful of fine breadcrumbs, 1 pint picked shrimps, a teaspoonful of chopped parsley, and, lastly, the yolk of an egg. Sprinkle with breadcrumbs, cover with a layer of mashed potatoes, dot with margarine and cook in a moderate oven for fifteen minutes.

Bacon Pudding

You can use up scraps of cold boiled or fried bacon this way.

Cut the bacon into small pieces, and arrange in a buttered pie dish. Sprinkle with grated cheese, a small chopped onion, add a beaten egg and half a pint of milk. Salt and pepper. Bake in a slow oven for 1 hour. Serve with mashed potatoes.

Scalloped Onions and Cheese

Cheese and onions combine to make this tasty dish.

Ingredients: 1½ lb. onions, 4oz. cheese.

1 pint cheese sauce (white sauce with 2oz. grated cheese stirred in), pepper and salt, and a cupful of minced boiled bacon, 4 tomatoes.

Cook the onions in boiling salted water until tender, then drain, and arrange half of them in a greased pie dish. Add seasonings, the skinned tomatoes, and the bacon.

Pour over the cheese sauce.

Add the rest of the onion, sprinkle with browned crumbs and grated cheese, dot with butter, then bake in a hot oven until browned.

Fish Cream

A savoury way of using up cold cooked fish.

Flake the skinned and boned fish, then make a white sauce. When it begins to thicken, add the fish and stir for a minute or two. A piece of butter well whisked into the cream is a great improvement. Pour over rounds of buttered toast.

Cold cooked spinach and potatoes make these tasty, hot "nests".

Mash equal quantities of the vegetables together, add seasoning, a chopped hard-boiled egg, a teaspoonful of parsley.

Curt Cures

Keep these simple remedies by you:

For indigestion: Pineapple juice is an excellent digestive.

For a sore throat: Sage-leaf tea, sweetened with honey, is a good gargle.

For your liver: Take tomato-juice. It has a specific effect.

For highly strung nerves: Add two or three handfuls of sweet scented lime blossoms to your bath.

For tired feet: Add a few drops of arnica to some water and bathe your feet in it.

SIMPLE SWEET

Bananas Glacée is a quickly made sweet. Dip a few sliced bananas in a thick syrup made with 1 lb. of lump sugar and a few tablespoonfuls of water, then roll in icing sugar and let stand till cold.

Monday is the day for "left-overs"—a good omelette can be made with thin strips of ham, mixed beforehand with the eggs. Cucumber Salad, mixed with oil, vinegar, and one teaspoonful of caraway seed, can accompany the remains of the cold lamb or ham.

New potatoes, sliced carrots, beans and peas, boiled, mixed and served cold with a mayonnaise dressing make an excellent Vegetable Macédoine, and Sardines au Parmesan—sardines coated with grated Parmesan cheese, seasoned with cayenne and slightly fried in butter, are very tasty as a savoury.

QUIET CORNER

One shell plays many parts . . .

THE empty coconut shell is not an ornament.

With a gaping mouth where a quarter of it has been sawn away, this fragment of a trophy from some forgotten fair has been fixed for years to the same branch of a plum tree.

Every year the rusty wires which hold it have to be carefully untwisted and refixed to stop them from cutting a deep ring in the thickening wood.

When it has ceased to be a food-bowl for the birds each winter, the shell becomes a house which stands open for its summer tenants. They have returned once more.

In and out of its mouth they go, with pale grey bodies flickering in their quick twisting flight.

At the bottom of the shell there is already a shallow saucer of green moss, the beginning of a nest which shows that the flycatchers will soon be in residence.

LEARN TO SWIM WELL

Are You Collecting this Interesting Series?

KEEP on with the breathing practice described in the first article. But start some push-and-glide work as well. This is very interesting and useful.

Stand at the side of the pool, about waist-deep, with your back to the wall, and your foot up against it too, behind you. Bend forward so that your shoulders are under water, and stretch your arms out to the front as if you were a diver. Then duck your head and push off from the side as hard as you can.

If you can spring the other foot against the wall also, so as to get a stronger push, all the better. Anyhow, you will straighten the body as you push so that you glide flat along the surface, or just under it, with arms, body and legs all in a straight line. With a good push and a straight position you should travel several yards in a lovely smooth glide. Practise this glide many times, for it will make starting to swim much easier.

THE FIRST STROKES

One other thing. If you can get an old motor inner tube, or some sort of belt or float, you can begin right away to try swimming movements. If you cannot then you must grip the bath side with your hands while practising the legs; and stand up, with shoulders leaned forward into the water, for arm practice.

Dog-paddle will be your first stroke—it is by far the easiest way of swimming.

Lie flat on your breast, holding your front or the bath side, and work the legs slowly. Draw each under you in turn, then drive it back so that the sole pushes against the water. For these arms, stand firmly, then push each arm in turn to full stretch at the front, just under the water. Next the arm drives down, hard and straight, until it is under the body. As one arm drives downward and backward the other doubles up under the chin and glides to the front ready for a new stroke. Keep the fingers together and the hand flat so that it gets plenty of power.

More swimming hints soon.

TSANG FOOK PIANO COMPANY,

THE MAN BEHIND THE ARAB RIOTS

He Started a Revolution—Now He Cannot Stop It

Rebel Britain Once Pardoned FLARE-UP THAT HAS NOW COST £100,000

By LADISLAS FARAGO

Jerusalem, July 1.

THE Holy City to-day is a dead city. The streets are empty; the Arab shops are closed.

Reinforced police patrols stand at street corners and in the doorways of the Old City, searching the infrequent passers-by for weapons.

The Arab revolt against Jewish immigration has cast a blanket of fear over the city, bringing all normal activity to a standstill.

Near the pavements stand solitary cars.

Nails strewn upon the roadway make it impossible for motorists to continue their journeys.

In the uncanny silence one hears from time to time the explosion of bombs.

Occasional shots split the air with a whiplike crack.

Only in the Jewish quarter does life still pulsate, but the atmosphere is oppressed.

Faces reveal sorrow and trouble. Troubled still more by to-day's disturbances at Haifa when police and troops had to open fire to quell a disturbance caused by the arrest of Moslem women.

Snipers were busy, a bomb was thrown at the police station, and the demonstrator was shot dead.

Arabs erected barricades and stoned a British policeman, but luckily a lorry patrol of the Loyal Regiment (North Lancashire) came to his assistance.

They opened fire, checking the situation until the arrival of reinforcements.

Born Rebel

In a modern equipped office near the Walling Wall, between mosques and churches, I found the man behind the Arab revolts—Haji Emin El-Husseini, the Grand Mufti of Jerusalem and president of the Supreme Arab Council.

He is the born Arab rebel. Haji Emin is only 42, but behind him lies a life full of excitement and emotionalism.

When only 26 he led revolts. At that time he was condemned to a long term of imprisonment but escaped into the interior.

Fanatical Devotion
His influence on the Arab masses is tremendous, but this influence is tragically one-sided.

"If he should openly declare Holy War," one of his confidants told me.

New Cure For Hay Fever

London, June 26.

A certain cure for Hay Fever is announced.

The authorities in the physiotherapy department at St. Georges Hospital, Hyde Park Corner, after experimenting for five years say they have found the treatment to cure it.

It involves the application, by electricity, of a coating of ionized zinc to the inside of the nostrils.

Three or four applications are given, after which the majority of patients are free from attacks of ordinary hay fever for a year.

Precautory applications are given at the end of twelve months and again a year later, and after that there is usually no recurrence of the trouble.

Reads by Light of His Own Body

Budapest, June 21.

An "electric man," who can read by the light of his own body, has astonished the doctors of Hungary.

He is the 63-year-old Count John Borenyi. According to physiologists and electrical experts who have examined him, his body—especially in the early morning—is charged with static electricity strong enough to make Neon tubes glow when he touches the terminals.

The Coronation

Who Shall Carry The King's Spurs?

The Court of Claims which has been set up in connection with the Coronation will consider pedigrees dating back to the days of William the Conqueror, which will be put forward by claimants for services at the ceremony.

Men, and women too, who consider they have the hereditary right to perform certain functions at the crowning of the Sovereign will engage counsel to defend their claims before the court.

Many and varied are the claims that are put forward at every British Coronation, and by no means all of them have been allowed in times past.

Chief of the "services" to the King at his crowning is the ancient office of King's champion—the knight who, in medieval days, rode into the Coronation banquet hall proclaiming himself King's Champion, ready to defend the King's claim to the throne against all comers.

There is little dispute as to whom this right belongs, though no armoured knight will challenge traitors next May. From ancient days the King's Champion has been the holder of the Manor of Serjeant, though how the first holder became champion is one of the mysteries of history.

PREVIOUS CLAIMS

Other claims which have come before the Court are:

To support the King to the altar;

To carry the great spurs (part of the Coronation regalia);

To carry the second sword;

To supply a baton to the King;

To carry the cap of maintenance;

To drink the King's wine as a guard against poisoning.

To have the bed which the King sleeps on the night before he is crowned;

To be master of the silver gallery; To be given a box in Westminster Abbey for 73 persons, and 40 ells of crimson velvet (the traditional right of the Lord Great Chamberlain).

Three claims which are likely to be allowed are those of the Earl of Shrewsbury, as Lord High Steward of Ireland, to carry a white wand as symbol of his office; of the Barons of the Cinque Ports, to hold a canopy over the King's head at the Abbey; and of the Lord of the Manor of Workop to present to the King a pair of fine gloves.

These claims have been made and allowed at previous coronations, but these, like all other claimants, and even the Duke of Norfolk, who, as Earl Marshal, is in control of the whole elaborate ceremonial, must first prove their claims to the satisfaction of the Court of Claims.

Even the right to crown the King, usually ascribed to the Archbishop of Canterbury as Chief Priest of the Church of England, is, according to some authorities, a matter for discussion, as there are arguments that could uphold a claim by the Archbishop of York, to whom falls the duty, according to the generally accepted ritual, of crowning the Queen Consort.

All the "rules" for the crowning of Kings are contained in the "Liber Regalis," dating from the time of King Richard II. and now in the custody of the Dean of Westminster.

Officials of the Privy Council have already consulted the historic book a score of times, and it will be constantly in use while the Court of Claims is in session.

"PASSIONATE JACK"

Strange Letters In Blackmail Case: Mrs. "A" in Court

"Without embellishing anything at all, your worship will appreciate that in all your experience you have never heard the like of this case before."

These were the words used by Mr. Ernest E. Brown, prosecuting in a case at Hushall (Staffs) last month in which William Hugo Jones, aged 39, a colliery worker, of Lichfield-road, Little Blomwich, Walsall, appeared on remand, charged with uttering a letter demanding money by post.

Mr. Brown intimated that there were two charges of demanding money by post, and a third of sending a postal packet containing an indecent and obscene article.

Jones, said Mr. Brown, was a married man with a boy aged ten. He was employed at a local colliery as a weigh clerk.

With reference to the first charge, Mr. Brown said, "The story concerns a lady of substance as well as of social standing in one of the important counties of this country, and I shall ask for the name and address to be suppressed, as well as that of her husband, because he occupies such a position in the county that the publicity would do him serious injury and harm."

MRS. "A" AND MRS. "B"

Mr. Brown said that two women would be called during the hearing of the case whose names it was desired to suppress, and it was agreed that they should be referred to as Mrs. "A" and Mrs. "B."

"In the early part of this year," Mr. Brown continued, "there was a society action in which Mr. Norman Birckett was briefed for the defence and Mrs. 'A' was the defendant. The parties stood in a blood relationship to each other, and the Press—particularly the Sunday Press—gave such publicity to the case that eventually it found its way into the home and knowledge of Jones."

"On February 6 he wrote a letter to Mrs. 'A,' which opened the door to a correspondence which indicates either an obsession of a sexual character in the mind of the accused or that he is seeking for a larger field upon such matters."

Mr. Brown read a letter which he alleged was written by Jones to Mrs. "A." It stated that he had refrained from writing to her for some time to allow her to recover from the effects of the case.

"KINDRED SPIRIT"

The letter suggested that the writer was a "kindred spirit," and other extracts read, "Although I am a total stranger to yourself, I am greatly enamoured to you and stirred to such an extent that whatever it will cost me in hard cash, I intend to get a little fun and adventure out of you."

The letter said that the writer was 27, was possessed of a considerable wealth, though coming from middle-class parentage and that he liked to have contact with women of higher social standing than himself and matrons.

"How far are you prepared to go? I shall not quibble over a few hundreds. I shall leave that to you," the letter said.

It was suggested in the letter that if Mrs. "A" were interested she should insert a message in the personal column of a daily newspaper.

PERSONAL ADVERTISEMENT

Mr. Brown said that after the ordeal resulting from the case in which she was concerned, Mrs. "A" was a patient for eight weeks in a nursing home. She received the first letter from Jones after she had been out of the home for a week. She was considerably disturbed and upset.

She responded to the invitation and inserted a personal advertisement as requested.

"This starts a series of letters, the like of which I have never seen in all my 36 years' professional career," declared Mr. Brown.

"BLISSFUL HAPPINESS"

Mr. Brown read letters written by Mrs. "A" to Jones, who had described himself as "Jack Grayson."

Extracts from the first ran: "We can only find blissful happiness together if it is terribly secret. No one must ever see us meeting together. I have burned your letters, and will you promise faithfully to do the same to mine?"

"Letters can be divine, but terribly dangerous, and wreck people's lives."

"This is such an appealing romance, and so intriguing. We are both so passionate it may be marvellous."

"I have come to the conclusion you don't know so much as I do, but, like me, you are suffering from repression. I am tingling all over when I think of you. Now, desperate secrecy."

Mrs. "A" referred to herself in this letter as "your future partner in ? ? ? passion."

"PASSIONATE JACK"

The second letter opened, "Darling, darling, passionate Jack."

Extracts read, "I am just made for lots of love and don't get any. Isn't it terrible? I am the type who always looks 28 and never ages at all."

The letter said that she was, in a way, of grand birth, but loved simple things. She knew an old empty house where they could go and "love and love." The letter contained the phrase, "My passionate boy friend."

In a third letter Mrs. "A" said that she trusted "Passionate Jack," and did not believe him to be a blackmailer or a bungler.

Another extract referred to "Heaven together without any risks. There is no risk of divorce or getting married."

HOME WITHOUT SPEAKING

The letters written by Jones to Mrs. "A" had been destroyed, but in these, said Mr. Brown, he had indicated that his parents were poor, but had carved out for him a career in Parliament. He felt that his correspondence with Mrs. "A" would help him in securing a proper outlook on life and life's possibilities.

On March 14, added Mr. Brown, Mrs. "A" went to Birmingham by arrangement, and at the post office saw a man who was wearing a certain sign that had been agreed.

"When she saw this man she was so shocked and distressed at the difference from what she expected to be that she drove round Birmingham and went home without speaking to him," said Mr. Brown.

"Here, the story parts ways. The man, apparently disappointed that the woman did not stop and speak to him, changed his tune."

"GOING OUT TO KENYA"

He wrote to her suggesting that she should bear half of £10 expenses he had incurred in sustaining the correspondence, and in consequence of correspondence from him she sent him three sums of £2 10s.

Jones had revealed to her for the first time then that he had not destroyed her letters, as she had asked, and she would have done almost anything to get back her letters.

After she had sent the £7 10s, she received a letter in which "Jack Grayson" said that he was going out to Kenya and asked her if she could let him have £20 for expenses.

On May 1 the police, who had by now been informed, knew that a letter for "Jack Grayson" was being sent from Mrs. "A" and Detective Lockley kept watch at Pelsall post-office, to which it was addressed. He saw Jones call and ask for a letter in the name of "Jack Grayson," and subsequently spoke to him.

Jones said, "I admit it was me who sent the letters to Mrs. 'A' at —, and I am very sorry."

Later in his desk at the colliery where he worked the letters from Mrs. "A" were found.

MRS. "A" GIVES EVIDENCE

Mrs. "A" was then called. Mrs. "A" said that when she received a snapshot of himself from Jones it seemed a very nice face. She examined it through a magnifying glass.

Mrs. "A" said that she had been very foolish, adding, "I must have been nearly out of my mind at the time."

After she had sent the £7 10s Jones wrote of going to Kenya, and asked for £20 for a few necessities.

In another letter he said that unless he received a further £2 10s, making £10 in all, to which he said he had a right, he would postpone sailing for a month. If the money were sent, however, she would get her letters back.

DELIGHTFUL LETTERS

Replying to Mr. A. Victor Haden, detective who asked why she corresponded with Jones, Mrs. "A" said: "I wondered about the mental outlook such a man had—nothing else."

She added that she was not desirous of corresponding, but "if thought he was the type of man who might be helped by me, a middle-aged woman, I admit it was foolish, but it was absolutely kindly intended."

Later Mrs. "A" said: "I simply thought, 'Here is a poor creature who is going mad; perhaps I can help him.'"

She added, "I have never read such delightful letters as some of them were. He was a very very interesting and intelligent letter writer."

"I came to my senses when I saw him in Birmingham, and I simply fled—never spoke to him."

Immigration Suspension Proposals

ARABS' URGENT REQUEST
ONLY CURE OF CRISIS

Jerusalem, July 8. The suspension of immigration is proposed in an important memorandum submitted to General Sir Arthur Wauchope, High Commissioner in Palestine, by 137 Arab senior officials with an urgent request that it should be transmitted to Mr. V. Ormsby-Gore, Secretary of State for the Colonies, forthwith.

The memorandum states that this is the only solution of the present crisis and would enable the Royal Commission to set to work.

Meanwhile, terrorists are continuing to kill Europeans and Jews. European soldiers fired revolvers at two Arabs, killing one, on the Jaffa-Tel Aviv border, near the spot where a Jew was murdered on Tuesday. Reuter.

COLLEGE WALL COLLAPSES

FORTUNATELY NO CASUALTIES

With a deep rumbling noise, a wall, twenty feet long, situated in the grounds of St. Paul's College, Glenelg, collapsed last night, fortunately without any casualties.

The wall, which was about six feet in height, surrounded the embankment on the east side of the narrow stone pathway leading to the inner gate of the College. It was built on the main gate, taking a hair-pin bend to the inner gate. The wall, which collapsed, was situated just above this bend.

The collapse was apparently due to the recent rains. The debris blocked the pathway entirely, but this was later cleared away. The wall is said to have been built over ten years ago and was composed of brick and mortar.

The collapse occurred just after the evening classes for poor boys at the College had been closed, and it was fortunate that there were no boys on the pathway at the time. The noise caused by the collapse was, however, caused some residents nearby to vacate their houses.

OPIUM SEIZURE SEQUEL

TWO BOATS TO BE CONFISCATED

The seizure of 4,800 taels of raw opium at Junk Bay, in the early morning of July 1, formed the subject of a charge of possession against five men, Li Kiu, Man Tai, Chan Yui, Yee-kun and Pang So, before Mr. Burgess, at the Central Magistracy this morning.

The defendants, who appeared in the dock on remand, were represented by Mr. C. Y. Kwan, who pleaded guilty on behalf of the first defendant, and not guilty on behalf of the others.

Revenue Officer Grimmett, prosecuting, accepted the pleas, and stated that first defendant had three previous convictions.

Mr. Burgess imposed a fine of $5,000, in default, six months' hard labour, and an additional six years' hard labour without the option of a fine.

The seizure was made by Revenue Officer Ward and a party of revenue officers. Two boats, 2920Y and 5741W, and a quantity of dropping gear were also seized. The opium was found in bags in the water.

Mr. Grimmett made an application for the confiscation of the two boats and the dropping gear, and this was granted.

Five Killed In Experiment

EXPLOSION'S TOLL AT WOOLWICH

London, July 8. Five persons were killed in an explosion in the Research Department at Woolwich Arsenal to-day.

The explosion occurred during an experiment.

One of the dead is an official of the Department, Commander Long, who recently retired from the Navy after thirty years' service and had been employed in the Arsenal only thirteen months.

The other dead are two chemists and two labourers. Reuter Bulletin Service.

Nationalising Arms Trade

FRANCE WILL MAKE EXPERIMENT

Paris, July 8. A few French companies, like the Schneider and Hotchkiss munition works, will be nationalised at once as an experiment, under the Bill making possible the Government purchase of arms industry.

This step was approved by the Army Commission to-night.

If the experiment is successful, nationalisation will be extended, but for the present it is limited to the land and air force supply factories. The Naval and Air Force supply works enter extensively to civilian pursuits. Reuter.

CAIRO TALKS CONTINUE

NO AGREEMENT YET REACHED

London, July 8. Questioned in the House of Commons concerning the present Anglo-Egyptian negotiations, Lord Cranborne, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, said conversations between the heads of the two delegations were resumed at once on the return of Mr. Macleod's High Commissioner to Cairo.

Up to date the conversations had been on military clauses of the treaty. No final agreement had yet been reached.

The question of the Sudan and civil clauses of the treaty still remained to be discussed, he said. British Wireless.

King Visits R.A.F. Bases

INSPECTS NEWEST WAR PLANES

London, July 8. The inspection of the Royal Air Force stations to-day by the King, accompanied by the Duke of York, was the first occasion on which a British monarch had ever made such an aerial tour. The King, who wore the blue uniform of a Marshal of the Royal Air Force, flew in his own D. H. Dragon aeroplane from Windsor, and first visited the fighter station at Northolt, which forms part of the fighter command of the air defence of Britain.

His Majesty then proceeded by air to Wittering House, of the No. 11 Flying Training School, recently formed in connection with the expansion of the force, where the pupils were paraded, and inspected the air force dining hall and mess arrangements and took luncheon in the officers' mess. The bomber station at Mildenhall was next visited. It forms part of the new bomber command, and here aircraft and the crews of squadrons were inspected.

At the Martlesham Heath aerodrome and airfield experimental establishment, the King displayed keen interest in several aircraft, including the "Spitfire" jet, which is a wing monoplane with an enclosed pilot's cockpit, of all metal construction, chiefly aluminium, with retractable undercarriage. The "Spitfire" gave a demonstration of its terrific speed when it made a power dive and also showed its wonderful stability with a slow climb. The Bristol Blenheim also gave a most impressive display.

The "Hurricane" jet, produced by Hawker Aircraft, Limited, also a single-seater long wing monoplane, with enclosed cockpit, and another Vickers single-seater fighter, armed with low wing type, were also carefully examined. Other aeroplanes which were inspected included four medium bombers, two bomber transports, one general purpose Vickers Wellington machine, and Army co-operation aeroplanes, at present unnamed, as well as the latest equipment.

The King was keenly interested in a new Handley Page medium bomber and he studied carefully the mechanism of the revolving gun turret of a "Damon" fighter. On the conclusion of the visit to Martlesham, the Royal party returned by air to Hendon. British Wireless.

SALE OF YOUNG CHILD

TWO PEAK SERVANTS INVOLVED

A charge of taking part in a transaction to transfer possession of a minor—a male child named Ho So-wah, aged seven years—for a valuable consideration, was preferred against two men and a woman before Mr. W. Scheffeld, at the Central Magistracy this morning.

The defendants were Pang Cheung, 38, unemployed, Lam Wai-ling, 34, cook boy employed at an address on The Peak, and Yip Lin, 26, his wife, also employed at the same address on The Peak.

Inspector Ellis said that on June 20 a woman, Pao Yim, mother of the child and concubine of the father of the child, ran away with the child. She went to Taiipo and stayed at the house of first defendant's mother. She told this woman that she wished to dispose of her child, as she wanted to go abroad. She was taken to the first defendant who told her the key of a person who wanted a child. The first defendant took the mother to The Peak to the house where second and third defendants were working. Arrangements were made for the child and third defendant to pay $50 for the child. On June 20, the first and third defendants and the mother went to Vanchai, where a "lung tip" was drawn up by a street letter-writer and the money was paid for the child later at The Peak address. The mother had since disappeared and could not be traced. Later, the father of the child had information that the first defendant knew something about the matter and had him arrested. First defendant gave information leading to the arrest of the second and third. The child was also found.

According to second and third defendants, said Inspector Ellis, the mother had told them the child was being disposed of with the knowledge of the father who was in the country, and that he had asked her to bring the child to Hongkong for the purpose. The defendants, however, did not make any enquiries to see if this was true.

Inspector Ellis added that he had been instructed by second defendant's employer to say he was satisfied with defendant's services and had no complaint to make about him.

Mr. Scheffeld sentenced each defendant to three months' hard labour.

Four Indians, Guridial Singh, 24 unemployed, Man Singh, 23, unemployed, Channan Singh, 41, private watchman, and Didar Singh, 36, private watchman, appeared before Mr. W. Scheffeld, at the Central Magistracy this morning, charged with having assaulted Suman Singh, an Indian police constable, at Tai Hang on June 20. Mr. McCullum appeared for defendants. Acting Sub-Inspector Madgwick asked for a week's remand, saying the injured man was likely to be in hospital for two or three weeks more. He had a fractured leg. KOWLOON BUS FARES TOO HIGH

INADEQUATE STREET LIGHTING
K.R.A. ANNUAL REPORT

A year of useful endeavour is recorded in the annual report of the Resident's Association for the twelve months ending December 31, 1935. Summarising its activities, the Committee states:

BUS SERVICES
The Committee has been in constant touch with the Kowloon Motor Bus Co. on sundry matters pertaining to the comfort and convenience of passengers. These have been usually met with a spirit of co-operation, and the bus company was considering a reduction in fares when the sterling exchange slumped affecting the local dollar which somewhat altered the outlook of the bus company, so that the question of reduction in fares was shelved for the time being.

It is felt, however, that in comparison with the scale of fares ruling on the Hongkong side, the bus fares in Kowloon are unreasonably high so that this question awaits further attention.

The question of improving the service along certain routes has also been dealt with, and an express service during rush hours was suggested which it is hoped will be an improvement.

ROAD SURFACING
The P.W.D. was approached regarding improvement of roads in certain parts of the Peninsula.

In several cases this has received attention, but there are still some road surfaces much needing improvement.

TRAFFIC & STREET LIGHTING
The Committee has repeatedly stressed to Government the inadequacy of street lighting, especially in the main thoroughfares of Kowloon, and the uselessness of the traffic islands which appear to be a feature of road-making in the northern part of the Peninsula.

Government was specifically requested to remove the islands along Prince Edward Road, but so far no action has been taken.

Regarding street lighting, if results are to be taken as any criterion, Government's experiments in the vicinity of the Alhambra Theatre seem to have given no enlightenment, as it will be noticed that the area specified has reverted to its former poor standard. It is considered that this question of road lighting should have Government's immediate attention as the large number of accidents on Kowloon roads during the past year in Kowloon are mainly attributable to the present defective lighting.

STREET SLEEPERS
The Association was approached by the Street Sleepers Shelter Society for assistance. In addition to the personal interest and help given by individual members of Committee, a sum of $50.00 was donated towards the fund which assists the sleepers.

PUBLIC UTILITIES
The Association has been in touch during the year with the various public utility companies operating in the Peninsula with a view to securing a reduction in charges for various essentials; the course of the negotiations is fully shown in the correspondence under this heading.

POSTAL SERVICES
The Postmaster-General was approached regarding certain improvements which might be made for the benefit of the public, and such suggestions have always been met with most cordially by this official.

It is to be regretted, however, that on account of the prohibitive rates demanded by the air mail facilities from Hongkong to North China through Canton could not be more extensively used.

CHILDREN'S PLAYGROUNDS
The supervision and condition of these playgrounds continues to be the attention of the Association; the public utility companies have been brought to the notice of the Authorities during the year, and recommendations for improvement submitted.

MARKETS
Government was approached by the Committee with suggestions for the extension and improvement of the Fishmarket which is appended.

It is to be regretted, however, that Government does not yet see the necessity of increasing the size of the market in this populous district, but members of our Association can rest assured that the matter is being kept in mind.

MISCELLANEOUS
A number of changes took place during the year—Mr. J. H. Shaw who very ably carried out the onerous duties of Hon. Secretary was asked to resign in December through pressure of work, so that the duties devolved upon Mr. Chas. E. M. Terry as soon as he returned from Hong Kong. The Vice-President Mr. T. B. Wilson resigned prior to his proceeding to the United States on holiday, and Mr. C. M. Manner also went on leave.

Regarding the use of St. Andrew's Hall for meetings, the Association felt that some mark of appreciation should be expressed to the St. Andrew's Council, and it was decided to donate $40.00 to the Church Fund.

The Association's thanks are due to those officials of Government Departments and Public Utility Companies with whom the Association has come in contact during the year, for their courtesy. Thanks are also due to the Council of St. Andrew's Church for the use of its Hall for meetings, and the local press for publishing could his silence be construed as an acceptance of the story?

PRISON SENTENCE QUASHED

Mr. Sanderson: That may be so. The reason why I raised the point was that if your Lordship were trying the case with a jury you would have kept it from them unless you were satisfied that the appellant accepted it.

Continuing, Mr. Sanderson said that while Revenue Officer Humphreys was in the shop, a man named Chung Fook-chuen came and claimed the opium as his. On the following day both Chung and the appellant were charged, (1) with unlawfully dealing in raw opium at Taiipo Market, and (2) with counselling a minor to have possession of 26 taels of raw opium at Sheungshui railway station.

Mr. Williams interrupted by saying that the Crown was not supporting the second charge because the opium in question was raw and not prepared.

None of the accused, went on Mr. Sanderson, was legally represented at the trial, and the man Chung pleaded guilty to both charges and was sentenced to 15 days' imprisonment on each, the appellant pleaded not guilty but was convicted and sent to three months on each charge.

GROUND OF APPEAL
The grounds for the appeal were: (1) insufficient evidence to warrant conviction; (2) the evidence was not corroborated; (3) if the evidence of the boy, who was an accomplice, was not uncorroborated, then the conviction should not have been made; and (4) the Magistrate should have given the benefit of the doubt to the appellant because he himself was not certain whether the boy's story was accepted by the appellant or not.

Dealing with the first ground, Mr. Sanderson said the only evidence against his client on the first charge was the finding of papers, a griddle and a towel which were stained with opium. There was, however, no evidence to prove the ownership of these articles.

His Lordship: What about his instructions to the boy to take the opium?

Mr. Sanderson: Then the appellant should have been charged with offering to deal in opium, but not "dealing in opium." The boy himself was an accomplice and was in fact charged and convicted. I do not, however, suggest that that would render his evidence inadmissible or the conviction, on his story alone, illegal, but I do stress that in view of well-known authorities it would be highly dangerous to convict upon his evidence alone, because he was an accomplice.

Referring to the second point of the appeal, Mr. Sanderson said that the only part of the boy's story which was corroborated was the finding of the opium on him. There was no corroboration of any action which implicated the appellant. It had been the practice of judges that the man should not be convicted on the uncorroborated evidence of an accomplice.

His Lordship: But the prosecution relied on the silence of the appellant for corroboration.

Mr. Sanderson: When the boy entered the shop, the appellant shouted out to him in Hakka, but what he said was not revealed because the Revenue officer did not understand the dialect and the boy was not asked to tell what was said. The shout might have been a denial.

Concerning the point of benefit of doubt, Mr. Sanderson said that the Magistrate should never have heard the story of the boy unless he was satisfied that the appellant had accepted it. The Magistrate himself was not certain, whether or not the boy's story was correct, because it was not corroborated; and therefore should have given the benefit of the doubt to the appellant.

CROWN REPLY
Replying for the respondent, Mr. Williams submitted there was sufficient evidence for conviction on the first charge in view of the boy's story that he was taken by the appellant to Shumchun, and there given the opium.

Counsel admitted there was no corroboration of the boy's story. Giving his decision, His Lordship said that as the Crown had introduced the story of the boy unless he was satisfied that the appellant had accepted it, the appellant was entitled to succeed on that point. As regards the conviction on the first charge, the boy was admittedly an accomplice and his evidence therefore must be regarded with suspicion and ought not to be accepted without corroboration. It was the duty of the Magistrate, sitting as judge and jury, and from numerous and clear authorities, to consider the point of whether or not the story could be accepted; but apparently he had failed to do so as there was no mention of it in the depositions.

The appellant was entitled to succeed on his appeal.

Mr. Sanderson then asked for costs, but this was refused.

PUBLIC OPINION HEEDED

The value of informed public opinion has been illustrated by the decision of the Government to give heed to the arguments recently advanced in the columns of the Press for the retention of privately-owned tents and similar structures on the Repulse Bay bathing beach. Happily, the proposed ban is not now to be enforced, and the result will mean much to those who do not happen to own matchsheds and who find the Repulse Bay beach, with adequate means of cheap transport thereto, practically the only bathing resort on the island which they are able to patronise. As the Bill dealing with the matter was originally drawn up, it was intended that private tents should be permitted on all matchsheds, within areas allotted and definitely marked off, but when the Bill came up for its first reading, the Government, for reasons which have not been disclosed, intimated that no tents whatever would be allowed at Repulse Bay. In response to public opinion, however, that ban will not now be persisted in, and the original general rules applicable to all matchsheds will also operate at Repulse Bay. There is one further point worthy of note. The original regulations contained no specific prohibition against the erection of tents in front of matchsheds, but, at the same time as the Repulse Bay ban was announced, it was also intimated that the Government did not intend to allow tents to occupy areas in front of sheds. As the original schedule is now being reverted to, it must be assumed that there will in future be no objection to tents in front of sheds, provided they are confined to areas specially marked off. So far as Repulse Bay is concerned, no other parts of the beach are available, since the undeveloped portion of the Lido, which has a considerable sea frontage, cannot be utilised, as the Government's lease to the Realty Company contains a proviso that no structures shall be permitted between the leased area and the sea. The position generally seems now to be quite clear—tents may be erected on any matchsheds within allotted areas, and there is nothing to prevent such areas being marked off in front of matchsheds. Throughout the controversy, we took the stand that

IN BERLIN TO-DAY... They Call a Spade A SYMBOL

by John
BROPHY

A YOUNG man in a neat uniform, parading up and down before the wrought-iron gates of a castle—a country house would this time be a nearer, if less literal translation of schloss—and carrying at the slope of his shoulder—a spade.

Not a dirty spade, not a spade soiled with clay and sweat, but a new spade with the haft glistening with varnish and the metal highly burnished. In fact, a ceremonial spade. A symbol.

For this castle, once the residence of a Brandenburg landowner, situated in a wood about twelve miles east of Berlin, is now a Compulsory Labour Camp. Youths of sixteen or seventeen, as soon as they leave school, have to serve six months in one of these camps before commencing their conscript military service.

They dig, they drain marshes, they fell timber, they build roads. The work is heavy—it is said that many faint from exhaustion—and English boys would regard it as all the heavier for the squad drill which accompanies it, with much blowing of bugles and beating of drums.

NO SMILES

—by Order

MY hosts were unable to obtain permission for me to see over the camp. Many would have to be filled in and long notice given. That is typical. The Nazis may be creating a new State, but they are leaving substantial tracts of the old Germany, including long forms to be filled in for almost everything.

So all I was able to see of the Labour Camp was the solemn youth keeping guard at the gate with the spotless ceremonial spade, and a squad of the young labourers being drilled to drums and bugles in the forecourt. The sergeant talked to them vehemently, and at length, before dismissing them, and I asked the import of his fluent Prussian address. I was told he had noticed some of them grinning, and he wouldn't do, and before he had finished with them the grins would come off.

THE spade, however, does typify Berlin to-day. Everywhere there is work going on. The time trees that gave the Unter den Linden its name have vanished—the centre of the great boulevard is all sand and upturned clay, for they are making an extension of the Underground railway to take visitors out to the Olympic Games. Perhaps to a stranger there seems no need for that, no congestion of traffic—but it is work, and though the wages paid to the navvies, some of them former professional men, are little more than the "dole," while they work they need not think.

And they are working everywhere, rebuilding the grounds of the Radio Exhibition which was burned down last year, making great motor roads in all directions out of Berlin, building the stadiums for the Olympic Games and a model village for the thousands of competitors. After the Games, the village will become a barracks for the most efficient regiment in the Army.

And as you fly across Germany you see everywhere long straight roads with hardly a vehicle on them. There can be no doubt of their purpose. They are military roads designed to move troops, guns, ammunition and supplies to the frontiers, with the utmost speed. They stretch north, south, east, west. No wonder there is poverty in Germany.

At Hanover aerodrome in the Customs Station there is an enormous weighing machine, big enough to weigh a grand piano or a prize ox.

A woman had brought a bunch of six roses from Holland. The Customs official laid them solemnly on the weighing machine. The finger moved so slightly that he had to lift his glasses to see what it recorded. Then he solemnly calculated, filled in a large form, and charged the woman the equivalent of three-halfpence.

The finger moved so slightly that he had to lift his glasses to see what it recorded. Then he solemnly calculated, filled in a large form, and charged the woman the equivalent of three-halfpence.

BERLIN is pre-eminently a serious city. One sees preoccupied and anxious faces everywhere. And everybody wants to know what England thinks of the new Germany, of Hitler, of its Olympic Games.

They are proud of their country, but it is a pride without confidence. Would a psychologist diagnose this as a symptom of an inferiority complex?

The serious faces one sees in the streets are not handsome either. The blonde Nordic type, the Nazi ideal of gold hair and pink cheeks, is very rare. The Berliner usually has dark, lustreless hair and a complexion of old, rather worn ivory.

Some of the men have good, clean-cut features, but it is difficult to find a woman with a face or a figure which would pass as even moderately attractive in another country.

Berlin is a man's city, run by men for men—serious men who have re-established the hausfrau ideal.

COSMETICS are barred

A GERMAN told me recently that I could go all over Berlin and yet would see "practically no women with painted faces."

It was an unkind thought, and I refrained from uttering it, but still the fact remains that I did think a little paint and powder might have improved these Berlin women. They would have nothing to lose

A variation is the Rake, also carried at the slope.

NOTES OF THE DAY

Since the Great War the British Aircraft Industry has been the world's chief exporter of all aeronautical material, but when the announcement was made some time ago that there was to be a considerable expansion of the Royal Air Force it was feared in many quarters that this would mean the stoppage of supplies for overseas buyers. In spite of the emergency demands of the Government for more aircraft equipment, the aircraft and aero-engine builders have not overlooked the needs of their customers abroad. In an official report recently issued it was stated that the total value of aircraft exports for 1935 was $2,721,441. This is the highest on record, and it exceeds the figure for 1934 by $800,339. European countries placed orders last year to the value of $204,403, on the value of orders placed in 1934. British manufacturers are rapidly expanding the British Air Force and at the same time increasing their export of machines to many countries in nearly all parts of the world.

the proposed rules were too greatly in favour of, matchsheds owners, and that there was no reason whatever why tents should not be allowed in front of sheds where no other area was available, provided they were kept within specified limits. With this method of solving the problem now agreed to, it is to be hoped that the authorities will apply the rules in as liberal a spirit as possible, keeping always in mind the needs of people of small means, who, had the proposed restrictions been enforced, would have been deprived of rights which the public generally should be permitted to enjoy.

SIDE GLANCES By George Clark

"I only wanted her to be able to play a few little pieces that people like. I had no idea she would take it so seriously."

Mr. Harold Scott, the celebrated English pianist who has been making a tour of the Far East, will give a recital at the Amateur Musical and Theatrical Academy in Macao on Saturday, at 9.30 p.m. There is a not inconsiderable number of persons in the Macao Portuguese and Chinese communities who have a keen appreciation for good music, and Mr. Scott's visit is being looked forward to with much interest.

"A solemn youth keeping guard with a spotless, ceremonial Spade."

and everything to gain by the experiment.

There are so many questions it is not either polite or tactful to ask in Berlin—your German friend grows uneasy, he looks over his shoulder, and even then he will not give you a direct answer.

But it is not difficult to make deductions from such allusions and evasions. Berlin is still a city of secret fears, even though it is all dressed up for the arrival of the Olympic Games tourists—preparations are being made to accommodate no less than half-a-million, by the way, which seems optimistic even for a Fascist State.

Non-Aryans are forbidden to exhibit the Nazi emblems, and so their houses are clearly marked for patriotic butchers, grocers and other shopkeepers who like to charge excessive prices and behave rudely to those who dare not complain.

The Nazis have forbidden anyone to build a house with a flat roof. Flat roofs are Oriental, and therefore Jewish. The decree is obeyed, and no one laughs openly.

But it is a little odd to note flat roofs among the Olympic Games buildings, and huge pillars and colonnades designed in a distinctly Oriental—in fact, a Babylonian—fashion. But perhaps some Nazi geologist has been able to prove that Nebuchadnezzar was an Aryan after all.

EARS, EARS

Everywhere

It was odd, too, to go to the Scala, the big music-hall in Berlin, and find five out of the eight turns put on by obviously Jewish artists.

Austrian, American and Polish Jews, no doubt, but it looks as if the doctrine of racial purity had called not only all the good German writers but all the good singers, dancers and comedians.

Not quite all, though. There was Greek, as quaint and resourceful as ever. English people may be glad to know that he is still trying to push the piano towards the stool and hopping in and out of a broken chair.

Greek is a Swiss, though the Berliners I talked to allowed one to assume he is German. Still, he is a portent, a reassurance, a comforting indication that Berlin may still have a sense of humour behind its serious face.

But it is well hidden on most occasions, for there are ears everywhere. The stranger who takes the next table to you in a restaurant may go away to make a report on your idle conversation. The man who comes to repair your telephone may leave a secret microphone hidden in the receiver, so that every word spoken—not only into the telephone but at any time in that room—may be taken down by an unknown listener and brought up in evidence against you.

Perhaps, after all, it is not difficult to guess why they all look so serious in Berlin.

To-day's Thought

CUSTOMS may not be as wise as laws, but they are always more popular.

CHINESE SECRET WAR MISSION IN LONDON

NANKING IS READY IF HE SUCCEEDS

HOW BRITAIN MAY BE INDUCED TO LEND THE CASH

A DAPPER CHINESE NOW IN LONDON HOLDS IN HIS SMALL HANDS THE FATE OF TWO NATIONS—THE JAPANESE EMPIRE AND THE CHINESE REPUBLIC, ACCORDING TO THE LONDON SUNDAY DISPATCH.

His name is Tang Leang-li. He is here on a special and secret mission for China's dictator, Chiang Kai-shek. The result of his mission may mean war, or peace, in the Far East. Tang's business is to make huge purchases of munitions and 'planes, and negotiate in the City for a loan.

While Canton extremists are trying to force the hands of the Nanking authorities, the High Command of the Nanking War Office is waiting to know the outcome of his mission.

Nanking is divided over the question of armed resistance to Japan. Chiang Kai-shek has been opposed to it on the ground that Nanking has not enough resources of money and munitions for a prolonged war.

Marshal Feng, despite all these difficulties of money and munitions, is urging for immediate armed resistance to Japan.

Between the two conflicting views a compromise has been found. The result is the visit to Europe of Tang Leang-li. This Arab-looking-at-large, still in his early thirties, is not unknown in England.

He was in London only a few years ago as a writer and propagandist for Chinese Nationalism.

He was successful with his campaign against the Communists in South China that he was made Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs at the age of thirty.

Unfortunately for China, she has little security to offer for the proposed London loan.

There are, of course, the customs, prospects of Treaty ports and the lease of unimproved and projected railways in central China, but do they mean anything in the present chaotic condition of his country?

As against that there are political considerations of the highest import to British interests in China. Perhaps the Chinese Government can offer guarantees in the way of more facilities for British warships in the Yangtze to ensure payment of customs receipts.

Marty's radio reports contradict the belief of Professor Appleton, who was convinced this zone was hot only in summer. Marty's experiments show that the seasonal drop is only from 1,300 to 1,000 degrees.

As a consequence, Dr. Marty declares that the earth is perpetually shrouded by a fiery ring of incandescently rarefied air, in which, necessarily, no human activity could ever be hoped for.

Measurements of the upper ozone show fluctuations exactly corresponding to barometric measures on the ground, but indicating them. As a consequence, weather forecasts, Dr. Marty declares, can be made from these radio probes of the air.

Australian authorities are so impressed with Dr. Marty's findings, that modern ozone measures are now being installed at the Commonwealth Weather Bureau, the Solar Observatory at Canberra, and at the installation of the Council for Scientific and Industrial Research.

Convict's Buried Gold Secret

LOCATION GIVEN IN COURT

Johannesburg, July 1. A box of gold bars valued at £3,000 is buried somewhere in the grounds where Johannesburg's Empire Exhibition is to open next September.

This was revealed in court to-day when a convict, a former railway clerk named Beyers, gave evidence against Major Fourie, one of the chiefs of the railway police, and Mr. Moses Fine, a Johannesburg business man, who appeared on allegations of being accessories after the fact.

Beyers is serving three years' hard labour for the theft of a box of gold in transit from Rhodesia to London in February, 1934. The loss was only discovered when the box was opened in London.

After admitting the theft, Beyers to-day gave evidence that he sold this of the proceeds and buried the remainder in the show grounds. While on bail awaiting trial Major Fourie and Mr. Fine, he alleged, approached him and suggested that he should reveal the hiding place and share the profits. Beyers getting £1,100 and the costs of his trial and Fourie £500.

Beyers said that the gold was still there, but refused to assist the Crown in its recovery as "that was what he was serving his sentence for."

Defending counsel asked the Court to order Beyers to reveal the name of the purchaser of the third portion of the gold and also where the balance of it was buried.

After hearing the evidence many spectators left the crowded Court, hurriedly secured picks and shovels, and proceeded to the show grounds where a miniature treasure hunt was unsuccessfully attempted before the authorities stopped it.

The greatest difficulty about the recovery shot from bunker or rough is the difficulty of concentrating one's mind on the shot.

CHAMPIONSHIP RESULTS

In the open singles yesterday, A. M. Holland and H. A. Alves advanced to the last sixteen.

ALVES GOING STRONG

The players were evenly matched with the scores level after the first 13 holes. Alves clinched the argument by securing a four on the last hole.

Both players bowled well and Alves will require a good deal of bending on his present form.

Complete results of yesterday's matches follow.

(Second Round)

J. Watson, R. Hall, F. J. Fraser and W. Macfarlane (skip) beat P. E. Knight, J. Gellatley, W. H. Collyer and J. F. Macgowan (skip) 31-11.

AVIATION should be a Blessing: to-day it is EUROPE'S CURSE

"I TELL the House that I have been made almost physically sick to think that I and my friends and statesmen in every country in Europe, two thousand years after our Lord was crucified, should be spending our time thinking how we can get the mangled bodies of children to hospital and how we can keep the poison gas from going down the throats of our people." Since Mr. Baldwin made that statement in the House of Commons in 1935, the conscience of the world has received a profound shock.

Italy, a country looked upon by many of us as one of the greatest centres of culture and European civilisation, has broken her international agreements, forbidding the use of poison gas, and poured it indiscriminately from the heavens upon Abyssinian villages. To-day a few thousand peasants in Wallo are groping their way down the dark years because of a dictator, whose name they have never heard of, but whose decree of ruthlessness has put out their eyes.

Wallo is a long way from Charing Cross—yes, but not for aeroplanes. Is it not time that the peoples of Europe asked their statesmen, "Whither to-morrow?"

NATIONAL struggles concern every man in the country, every wife in every home and every child playing in the street. The aeroplane has diverted the full force and fury of war from the battle-ground to the home and nursery, and each one of us has his responsibility for this situation.

How has this danger come upon Europe and why, despite the reluctant horror and forebodings of the statesmen of all countries, do our "National" Governments continue to build more and more bombing aeroplanes in order to avert the danger of bombing? Take a brief survey of the position. In 1914 the aeroplane was little more than a clumsy and dangerous toy, yet the outbreak of the World War soon demonstrated its value as a fighting weapon.

Today's Thought
When a man tries himself, the perils are usually in his favour. —E. W. HOWE.

THE author of this article was a flying officer during the war and served with the R.A.F. from 1927 to 1932, being mentioned in dispatches during the last air operations against the Kurds. He was member of the special committee on International Aviation set up by the League of Nations in 1934, and is the author of a recently published book, "Humanity, Air Power and War."

This fact once realised, the new art of flying found itself promoted from a poverty-stricken hobby of the scientifically minded, or youthfully adventurous, to the first consideration of desperate Governments.

The brains and wealth of these Governments were lavished upon the science of flight, and it has well been said that war was the birth of aviation. Aviation, it still proscribed to war, will be the death of civilisation.

The increase in Air Power up to 1918 is well known—the increase in its destructive powers since that date is not yet realised outside official circles.

General Groves, in his book, "Behind the Smoke Screen," writes: "Whereas in the late war some 300 tons of bombs were dropped in this country by the Germans, air forces to-day could drop almost the same amount in the first twenty-four hours and continue this scale of attack indefinitely." This statement has never been challenged.

THE same author throws valuable light upon how such power will be used in the next war. He says: "In Europe, warfare, hitherto primarily an affair of fronts, will be henceforth primarily an affair of areas. In this war of areas the aim of such bombardments will be to bring pressure to bear upon the enemy people so as to force them to oblige their government to sue for peace."

The position, then, is clear for all to see. The targets for these

by Captain
Philip S.
Mumford

bombers will not be primarily armies or navies, but the life of the civil community.

If aeroplanes are bringing this danger to our homes, what counterbalancing protection are we to expect from aeroplanes? Can they defend us, our country or our Government? They cannot do so. To quote Mr. Baldwin once again—

"I think it is well for the man in the street to realise that there is no man on earth who can protect him from being bombed, whatever people may tell him. The only defence is offence, which means that you have got to kill more women and children more quickly than the enemy if you want to save yourselves."

The only possible solution, the internationalisation of all air power, both civil and military, was not only proposed at Geneva in 1933, but received the support of the delegates of France, Spain, Poland, Belgium, Holland, Norway, Sweden, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Turkey.

The U.S.A., Canada, Argentina, Japan and Germany offered to give the scheme sympathetic consideration, and assistance, and, indeed, salvation might well have been achieved but for the undisguised hostility of the British Air Minister, Lord Londonderry.

Our Imperialists, still ready to struggle towards the mirage of national glory at the risk of national annihilation, make the excuse that the efficiency of commercial aviation depends upon national control.

It is, of course, obvious that the abolition of National Air Forces cannot be accomplished unless civil aviation is also removed from the hands of National Governments. There are no insuperable difficulties preventing the Governments of Europe from creating an international authority empowered to control all main air traffic. Such an institution would be given the power to buy out all existing companies.

It would be solely responsible for all aerodromes, pilots and ground staff, the personnel being recruited upon an international basis, and their training in bombing and other forms of military aviation forbidden. They would also be solely responsible for orders for material, by means of which they could, in due course, influence the whole aircraft industry from a national into an international basis.

GOVERNMENT subsidies towards aviation, if and when necessary, would be made only through this international organisation and thus would no longer have a military basis or bias. Discipline within the air world would be maintained by their own international Air Police—much as our railways keep special police for their own purposes. By this method the national frontiers of Europe could no longer hinder the flight of machines. Aerodromes would be flooded by night and machines plying their way twenty-four hours in the day as is the case in America.

UNDER the present circumstances, national and military considerations have strangled the one great asset of the aeroplane—speed. Foreign machines may not travel direct routes, because of "strategic" areas and needs, and may not travel at night.

There is no practical reason why the aeroplanes should not be international. It is only being prevented by military prejudices. Aviation should be a blessing—to-day it is Europe's curse. It will become a benefit to humanity only when it is removed out of the hands of the Nationalists and used for world service.

POLAND WATCHES DANZIG

POSSIBLE COUNTER TO NAZI DEMANDS
BRITAIN ALSO CONCERNED

(Special To "Telegraph")

Warsaw, July 8.
If the Danzig Nazi leader, Herr Greiser, continues to press for revision of the Danzig Statute, and if it is officially followed up, and if the Senate chooses to modify or alter any one of the essential clauses which it considers inconvenient, Poland will also be led to demand various modifications in the chapters which do not satisfy the interests of Poland.

This statement is contained in a semi-official commentary issued by the Polish Foreign Office to-day.

The commentary appeals to the German Government to make a diplomatic move to ease the situation and hopes the German Government will give a diplomatic explanation of the cruiser incident.

The Leipzig commander failed to make the usual official call upon the High Commissioner, Mr. Sean Lester, when his ship visited Danzig recently, and caused the High Commissioner to protest to the League of Nations as a result.

SERIOUS VIEW
London, July 8.
The Danzig situation is quiescent since the Nazi leader, Herr Greiser, returned from Berlin and Geneva, though there is little doubt that Britain continues to take a serious view of the position there.

It is revealed that General Herman Goering, the German Air Minister, recently took a hand in the crisis when he saw the Polish Ambassador, M. Josef Lipski, in Berlin. The Ambassador explained the Polish viewpoint and is now awaiting further word from Germany.

Further details have been received in London regarding the meeting of the British Minister to Berlin with Dr. Dieckhoff of the Foreign Office. They indicate that the German spokesman gave assurance that Germany would do nothing which could be interpreted as direct interference in the affairs of Danzig, notwithstanding her expressed dissatisfaction with the present Danzig regime.

It is also believed that Dr. Dieckhoff refrained from discussing the conviction that Herr Greiser would continue to act as head of the Danzig Nazis upon the orders of Berlin, as he doubtless acted at Geneva.—Reuter Special.

King's Son Files Suit For Divorce

New York, July 8.
Count Covedonga, son of the former King of Spain, filed suit for the annulment of his marriage to a wealthy Spanish sugar planter's daughter to-day.

He alleges he was tricked into the marriage by false promises and that after their marriage the Countess admitted that her sole purpose in wedding him was to acquire a title.

He alleges the Countess had no intention of devoting her life to caring for her husband, and insisted upon living apart in a style he could not afford.—Reuter.

The Countess is also bringing suit for divorce on the grounds of incompatibility of temperaments.

Impressive Funeral

LAST HONOURS FOR CRASH VICTIMS

Cairo, July 8.
A combined military and Air Force funeral will be given to-morrow to the three infantry officers and four R.A.F. non-commissioned officers who were killed when a transport bomber in which they were flying crashed while landing in the darkness at Mersa Matruh Aerodrome.

The High Commissioner (Sir Miles Lampson), the Inspector General of the Air Force and the G.O.C. British forces in Egypt will attend.—Reuter Bulletin Service.

FREE SPEECH PERMITTED

UNION CONGRESS CAN TALK FREELY

London, July 8.
The International Trade Union Congress held its annual meeting in the Albert Hall to-night, at which twenty countries were represented.

Lord Snell, opening the conference, told the foreign representatives that they could say what they liked, as there is complete freedom of speech in Great Britain.—Reuter Bulletin Service.

CAPONE A MODEL CONVICT

MAY GET TRANSFER FROM ALCATREZ LIFE TWICE ATTEMPTED

San Francisco, July 8.
Mr. Arthur D. Wood, Chief Federal Parole Probation Officer, to-day revealed that Al Capone, one-time Chicago beer baron and racketeer, may be transferred to McNeil Island Penitentiary. Presumably this step would be taken to protect the life of the prisoner, who has twice been attacked while in the Alcatraz prison.

Mr. Wood said that an investigation had shown that "some of the big shots" at Alcatraz obeyed the rules implicitly and were therefore entitled to transfer to another prison, although they were not eligible for parole.

Capone has been one of the best prisoners and has earned the Government's consideration of the transfer question.

Meanwhile his wife is pleading for his transfer, saying enemies plot against his life.—United Press.

BRITISH BUSINESS PICK-UP

London, July 8.
For the first time this year the average level of wholesale prices showed an appreciable movement in June, rising to 0.8 per cent. above May and to 4.6 per cent. above June of last year.

Food prices rose by 1.2 per cent. and industrial materials and manufactures by 0.5 per cent. as compared with May. The index number of industrial materials was the highest recorded since October last.

R.A.F. PLANE NEARLY HITS BIG ZEPPELIN

London, July 9.
The agitation with regard to the zeppelin, Von Hindenburg, flying over England, lends piquancy to the statement of the Aeroplane Journal that an Air Force pilot while practising blind flying narrowly avoided ramming the big dirigible on one of her recent flights across England.

The plane concerned contained an instructor and pupil and took off from an Air Force aerodrome in the Midlands. It was flying through cloud when the instructor saw something large and dark ahead. He edged the controls and dived, and saw the windows of a gonola flash past as he missed the airship by a few feet only.—Reuter.

GERMANY AVOIDING POWERS' PARLEY

RHINELAND CRISIS AGAIN TO FORE
NO REPLY TO BRITISH NOTE

London, July 8.
It is reliably stated that Germany has informed Great Britain that she is disinclined to participate in the projected Brussels conference of Locarno Treaty signatories.

This conference is called to consider Germany's remilitarisation of the Rhineland and plans for a new treaty to replace the old.

It is reported that the German Foreign Minister, Baron von Neurath, told the British Charge d'Affaires in Berlin, Mr. Basil Newton, that Germany doubts if the present is a suitable time for a meeting of the Locarno powers.

In any event, Baron von Neurath said, Germany does not desire to send delegates unless Italy participates in the conference, which depends upon whether sanctions are lifted prior to the conference.

The German Minister also indicated that his Government does not yet intend to answer Britain's May 6 questionnaire, seeking amplification of Germany's counter-proposals to the Locarno powers' peace plan. Germany feels that due to the prevailing complications in Europe it would be unwise to make an answer at this time.—United Press.

ITALY INVITED

Rome, July 8.
Italy has received an invitation to the forthcoming conference of Locarno Treaty signatories at Brussels. At present the Government is considering its reply, and it is the general impression that she will accept.—Reuter Bulletin Service.

Mr. C. B. Burgess imposed a fine of $250, or three months' imprisonment, this morning at the Central Magistracy on Pang Wing, 18, unemployed, charged with unlawful dealing in opium. Defendant was caught in Canton Road and was stopped by the Chinese detective with whom he started a fight. Defendant then ran to the harbour where he threw the opium into the water. This opium was later recovered by a diver.
